ARMY'S HEADS BALK AT ORDER

British Regulars Resign Rather Than Proceed to Ulster.

DISAFFECTION IS WORRYING LONDON

More Troops Hurried Into North of Ireland in Home Rule Crisis.

London, March 21.—The outstanding feature of the news from Ireland today was the disaffection among the officers of the regular army under orders to proceed to Ulster with their regiments.

The actual number of resignations among them was still problematical, but that it was considerable was evident from the earnest early morning consultations of cabinet ministers regarding the best means of counteracting the movement.

TALESMEN ALL HAVE OPINIONS

GUARD STILL THERE

Terre Haute, Ind., March 21.—Examination of three talesmen occupied the morning session of the trial of Mayor Doan M. Roberts, who is charged with alleged conspiracy to commit election registration frauds. The talesmen examined were Lewis Ferry, city, a barber; John Thompson, Otter Creek township, farmer, and Joseph P. Trueblood, Prairie Creek township, farmer.

All said that they had formed an opinion in the case and that evidence would be required to remove such opinion. After being questioned by the attorneys for both sides all of the prospective talesmen were removed for cause on motion of the defense.

There was a small crowd in attendance today, but the deputies still guarded the court room and prospective jurors and witnesses were searched at the doors. No juror had been accepted as the noon recess approached.

The trial adjourned at noon today to Monday morning by agreement of counsel. Up to the time of adjournment seven veniremen had been examined by the defense, but none was accepted. It was rumored today that another batch of indictments would be returned by the grand jury next week. It was said many of these would also charge election frauds.

OLD FRIEND CIP TURNS UP AGAIN

IS VERY INDIGNANT

Port of Spain, Trinidad, March 21.—General Cipriano Castro, former dictator of Venezuela, whose whereabouts had been unknown for several months, was discovered here today.

A party of detectives last night raided a hotel occupied almost solely by Venezuelans and found there 40,000 rounds of ammunition and a few revolvers. This discovery led to a further raid early today. The police proceeded to a house which had been occupied for several months by General Carmelo Castro, a brother of the former president. Armed with a search warrant they went over the place. Among the effects of the occupants they found only one revolver and a few cartridges. On entering one of the rooms, however, was occupied by General Cipriano Castro. The one-time dictator was extremely indignant over the procedure of the police, whose methods he denounced as harsh and unnecessary.

It is stated Sir George Lebunte, the governor, cabled to London today for instructions from the foreign office regarding Castro. The police disclaim any intention of interfering with the general's liberty, but among the Venezuelan residents there is great excitement in regard to possible developments. Great crowds assembled in the vicinity of the house, when the report spread that Gen. Castro had been found, but the police soon dispersed them.

COURT DENIES THEM FREEDOM

Three Convicted in Dynamite Cases Refused Release at Kansas City.

PLEA HELD NOT GOOD

Kansas City, Mo., March 21. Applications of three of the labor men convicted in Indianapolis in 1912, on charges of transporting explosives illegally, asking their release from the U. S. penitentiary at Leavenworth, were denied last night by Judge John C. Pollock, in the federal court at Kansas City, Kan.

Philip A. Cooley, J. E. Munsey, of Salt Lake City, and Frank C. Webb, of New York, who asked release, were not given their liberty on bond with others of the convicted men awaiting final disposition of their cases in the United courts. As the prison is located in Kansas, the applications for release must be made to Judge Pollock. Release for the three was asked for on the ground that they were convicted in Indiana while none was a citizen of that state. Judge Pollock held this not sufficient grounds for taking up the matter.

WOMAN SOBS OUT DETAILS

COURT PROTECTED BY HEAVY GUARD

Tells of Warfare on Husband Which Moved Her to Slay Editor.

Paris, March 21.—Madame Caillaux, gowned in black sobbingly gave her version of the killing of Gaston Calmette before Henri Benchard, the investigating magistrate today. The court room was protected from disturbance by a heavy guard. Mme Caillaux began with a brief history of her married life, then she remarked: "I always took great interest in the public life of my husband, sharing the pleasures and the woes of politics."

The prisoner's recital was suspended temporarily when she burst into a fit of sobbing.

Warfare on Husband.

On resuming her testimony she said, speaking slowly: "For two years an abominable campaign was directed against my husband, who was attacked on every occasion, notably on the charge that he had secretly ceded a portion of the French Congo to Germany and in connection with the Agifar incident in Morocco. I was deeply grieved by these calumnies which became particularly venemous at the time of the formation of the Doumergue cabinet. The feeling of hostility I noticed especially at receptions. My indignation was aroused because I had implicit faith in my husband's probity."

Madame Caillaux was taken from the jail to the law courts in a taxicab, preceded and followed by other taxicabs containing policemen. She wore a black gown and hat. As she descended from the cab she hid her face with a large muff. The journey of the prisoner was kept as secret as possible and very few of the public were aware of it. The inquiry began immediately.

Showered With Attention.

Madame Caillaux was showered with attention today. Her friends and acquaintances, having partly recovered from the shock caused by her act, are now showing their interest in her fate and hundreds of them have written to her or left cards at the gate of Saint Lazare prison, where she is in custody. She receives a huge bag of letters in every mail, as well as great bouquets of flowers, baskets of fruit and packages of books.

Madame Caillaux passed the greater part of the forenoon in answering her correspondence, reading the newspapers and conversing with her husband and her little daughter. The sharp watch-

CHICAGO MEN HIGH

Buffalo, N. Y., March 21.—Bowling in the early squad of the American Bowling Congress two-man events here today was the most sensational in the tournament thus far, fifteen teams shooting better than a 1,100 total, but none scoring enough to class among the ten leaders.

Horndorf and McFaetz, of Chicago, totalled high score of the morning squads with 1,163. C. Nelson, a one-armed bowler from Chicago, put up some high scores, counting 256 in the first game, 191 in the second and 182 in the third. Litot and Centlivre, of Fort Wayne, tied Nelson and Metcalf with 1,154.

Teams from Pittsburg, Cleveland, Chicago, Philadelphia, St. Louis and Minneapolis will make up the five-man squads tonight.

The New Haven Monks club from New Haven, Conn., took first place in the five-man event last night with a total score of 2,944. Bowling in the same squad the Centlivre five of Fort Wayne went into third place with a score of 2,877.

MESSENGER BOY IS BADLY HURT

IS AT THE HOSPITAL

Andrew Rudowske, aged fourteen years, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Andreas Rudowske, of 1900 Thomas street, is a patient at Hope hospital suffering from injuries sustained at 6:45 o'clock this morning at the corner of Clinton and Jefferson streets, in a collision with a motorcycle owned and driven by J. H. Bischoff, of 1021 Lafayette street.

The youth was riding a bicycle north on Clinton street and in rounding a street car crashed into the Bischoff machine, according to the latter, who is an employe at the Fort Wayne Electric works. It is said that the boy sustained internal injuries that may cause his death, and he also suffered a fractured skull when his head came in contact with the pavement. He is lying in a semi-conscious condition at the hospital and during the morning his condition was weakened by frequent hemorrhages from the stomach.

AGAIN AFTER JUDGE WRIGHT

New Resolution to Impeach Washington Jurist is Introduced.

SIMILAR CHARGES LATELY DISMISSED

Jones' Panama Tolls Resolution Goes to Foreign Relations.

Washington, March 21. A resolution to impeach Daniel T. Wright, of the supreme court of the district of Columbia was introduced into the house today by Representative Park, democrat, of Georgia, and referred to the judiciary committee to decide what action shall be taken.

The committee recently dismissed as uncorroborated, charges similar to those contained in the Park resolution which allege the justice was guilty of improprieties on the bench and in private life. Justice Wright has attracted wide attention as the justice who sentenced Samuel Gompers, John Mitchell and Frank Morrison to jail terms for contempt of court in the Bucks stove and range case.

The Jones Resolution.

Senator Jones' much discussed resolution calling on President Wilson for information of what nations had protested against the Panama tolls exemption was referred to the foreign relations committee as Senator O'Gorman and its author had with drawn objections.

Senator Hoke Smith and Senator Jones clashed when the latter wanted the clerk to read a newspaper story saying the president wanted a limit on Panama tolls debate. Senator Smith blocked it but Senator Jones waiting until a bill on the calendar had been called up, read the article which sought to show that the president had told members of the house that debate on the bill should be limited to fifteen hours. "I don't believe the president made any such suggestion," said Senator Borah.

"We see in almost every newspaper every day," Senator Jones continued, "reports of senators or representatives meeting or representatives going to the president to ask whether this or that bill suits him or this or that amendment as satisfactory to him. Whether these reports are correct I don't know, but they occur so frequently that there must be some foundation for them.

STRIKING MINERS WILL NOT YIELD

MORE ARRESTS MADE

Collier, W. Va., March 21.—Striking miners of the West Virginia and Pittsburg Coal company, who have been in camp near the company's property since the strike was declared last September, held their ground today in spite of the report that James Oates, their leader, who is on trial in the United States district court at Philippi for violating the injunction of Judge Dayton, had ordered them to leave their tents.

Joseph Bowers, who has command of the camp in Oates' absence, declared he would maintain the camp until he received orders from John P. White, president of the United Mine Workers of America, to move. It was reported here that officials of the Ohio organization had instructed Bowers to keep the strikers together and not abandon the camp. A number of arrests were made during the night for alleged "pistol toting" among the men taken being a foreman at the Colliers mine.

GIVES ORDERS FOR ARREST.

Denver, Col., March 21.—Adjt. Gen. John Chase arrived today from the coal strike district and said that he had given orders to arrest "Mother" Mary Jones on sight if she returned to Trinidad. "Mother" Jones still was in Denver today. She said that the time for her departure for the strike zone had not yet been fixed.

"Mother" Jones, who is 82 years old, was released last Sunday after having been held as a military prisoner at Trinidad for more than two months.

Charles F. Murphy, the Tammany leader, was present in the capacity of a committeeman.

PREPARED TO HURL SHELLS

"TORREON MINE IF A WEEK," SAYS VILLA

Most Important Battle in Mexican Revolution Now Impending.

Constitutionalist Headquarters, Yermo, Durango, Mexico, March 21.—Gen. Pancho Villa with his 12,000 rebel soldiers today was prepared to hurl the first shell into the trenches around Torreon, of the resisting federal army under General Refugio Velasco, in what is considered the most important battle of the constitutionalist revolution.

Full of confidence General Villa has transmitted his energy to his subordinates and the camp at Yermo presented a scene which has never been marked by a revolutionary movement in Mexico. The peon soldiers hurried here and there, giving final touches to the establishment of the rebels for opening assault. Refreshed by a night's sleep after their long, hard march through the desert from Mapimi and Bermpeillo, Villa's khaki clad soldiers sprang to their work with zest.

Predicts Victory in Week.

The beginning of today saw the rebel army stationed on the outskirts of the federal stronghold, a point they had gained without resistance and with scarcely the sound of a shot to check their preparations for an assault. Within Torreon all was comparatively quiet and none in the rebel camp knew what preparations Gen. Velasco was making to repel the attack of the revolutionists.

Speculation as to the time the battle will begin was rife today among the soldiers and civilecypf atih ratibarthra soldiers and civilians, who had followed the rebel leader south from Chihuahua, but Villa answered all inquiries with the vaunt that "Torreon will be mine in a week."

The Knockout

"NO," said the man who is employed by the gas company, "it didn't happen yesterday—in fact it was so long ago that I have gotten over being sore about it. A family had moved into a house on one of the north-and-south streets in the west end, and I was sent out to see about installing a meter and other things. Well, I went out to the place, prepared to do the work, but I had to come back to the office to get another man to help me and to bring out some materials needed to do the job. Just as I was leaving the house to come down town, the woman said:

"'When you come back, you just come around to the back door and come right in. We are busy unpacking our goods and we will be around there somewhere.'

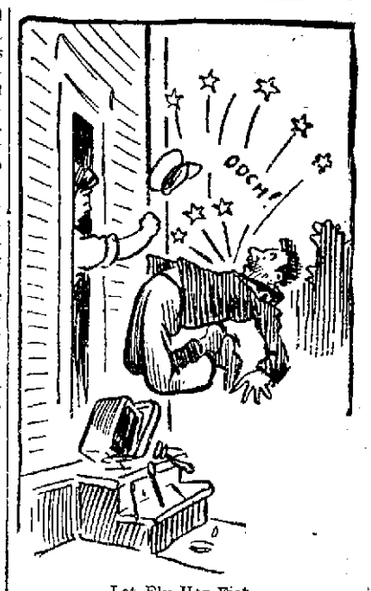
"So, when I got back, with the other man, we went around to the back of the house and I opened the door and walked in—or, rather, I started to go in. There, in the kitchen was a woman, but not the same one I had talked with. All of a sudden she turned upon me, gave me a fierce look and let fly her fist and struck me a fearful blow, which sent me on a backward somersault. As soon as I landed, I picked myself up and ran out into the street as fast as my legs could carry me, and the other man came chasing after. We didn't know but what we'd get peppered with birdshot or something, and we didn't propose to stay around and take any risks.

"Well, after a while, when we had smoothed down our ruffled feathers, we decided to go back and try the front door again, which we did.

"Why didn't you come around to the back door, like I asked you to do?' inquired the woman.

"We started to tell her what had happened to us when she broke out with a shick of laughter. 'Why,' said she, 'you got into the wrong kitchen. This is a double house and you blundered into my neighbor's place instead of ours.'

"I later found out that this other woman had just returned from town where she had made some purchases and had spread her money out on the kitchen cabinet and was counting it when I walked in. She thought I was a burglar and lit into me."



Let Fly Her Fist.

Mrs. Preston Gibson raised the ban from the colored headgear when she wore a brilliant purple wig to the playhouse ball given recently by Naval Attache d'Azy, of the French embassy.

FIRST DAY OF SPRING.

That Is the Theory But Weather Don't Indicate It.

According to theory this is the first real day of spring, but when one gets out of doors for any length of time, it don't take long to determine the fact that although the spring has arrived the weather does not indicate it, and added to this Weather Forecaster W. S. Palmer says we are due to have some snow tonight and colder temperatures Sunday. The fact is, however, that this is the date on which the sun is said to cross the equator on its annual northern migration.

LINCOLN LIFE IN NEW RECORD

MORE THAN $1,600,000

Indianapolis, Ind., March 21.—As is probably well known, all insurance companies doing business in the state of Indiana are required to make an annual report to the auditor of state not later than the first of March each year. The figures of the companies are now in for last year and the results of the life insurance transactions in Indiana are very interesting.

At the end of 1913 citizens of Indiana carried over $500,000,000.00 of insurance on their lives, over $100,000,000.00 of which was written during 1913. Twenty-four Indiana companies reported and 60 companies from outside of the state. Aside from the industrial companies, the Northwestern Mutual made the greatest net increase of insurance in force in the state, their figures showing $2,400,000. The Lincoln National Life, of Fort Wayne, was a close second, however, with a net gain of over $1,600,000. It is remarkable that the Lincoln Life, at the end of its eighth year, should have led all companies doing business in the state with a single exception. The only other companies that gained as much as a million of business in Indiana were the Indianapolis Life, the People's Life and the Inter-Southern Life. The companies that gained over half a million were the Conservative Life, the Indiana Life, the Intermediate Life, the Liberal Life, Meridian Life, the Equitable of New York, the John Hancock, the Life Insurance company of Virginia, the Mutual Benefit, the New England Mutual, the Provident Life and Trust and the Travelers' Life. None of the other of the 84 companies, except the Industrial, made gains worth mentioning, and many of them lost business.

It should be a matter of state pride that the Indiana companies are writing such a large proportion of the Indiana business. They wrote over $30,000,000.00 in Indiana last year and have over $100,000,000.00 of insurance in force on the lives of Indiana citizens. They collected approximately $3,000,000.00 in premiums on this business in 1913 and returned about $700,000.00 to Indiana beneficiaries of policyholders who died. The balance of the money was invested principally in Indiana securities. The investment by the Indiana companies of those immense sums is having much to do toward making Indiana one of the most prosperous states in the union.

SLAM TALK SHOT AT WRONG MAN

Police Captain Kelly Was Fellow Who Told Rowdies to Subside.

NEWS OF THE POLICE

Frank Millhouse and Nick Ault were just winding up Ault's birthday celebration opposite 125 East Leith street at 2 o'clock this morning. They were having a noisy and profane contab that disturbed the neighborhood. Finally a window at No. 125 was raised and a man's voice counseled the roysterers to get off the street. What one of the fellows said to the man is not printable and after a bit the man came out. On his breast gleamed a six-point star of gold. He came sturdily across the street.

"Now you fellows break it up and go home," said the man with the star.

"We will like ——," said one of the noisy boys. And the two started in to show the interloper where to back in.

The ensuing fight was lively from the go. One of the fellows threw a brick and another shied an empty beer bottle. This looked like business and the man with the star cut loose. The faces of Millhouse and Ault bore testimony in the city court this morning to what happened. The man with the star was Captain Richard Kelly, of the police department, who had been at home all day yesterday "fixing things up" about his place and he had gone to bed tired and the half-riot had spoiled his rest. He crumpled up Millhouse and Ault and started with them for the patrol box at the corner of Leith and Calhoun. Ault broke away and said he would get another brick. He never came back and when the wagon arrived Millhouse was carted to the station. He gave the name of his companion and the wagon made a second trip and brought in Ault.

In court this morning Captain Kelly pleaded for leniency in Ault's behalf because of the man's recent bereavement and the fact that his wife is in a delicate condition. Judge Kerr gave both fellows a hot lacing and let them go, not because they deserved it, but because of their intercessor and the state of affairs in Ault's home.

Caught in a Room Raid.

Two men who hail from Payne, Ohio, and two young women who honor this fair city with their residence, were hooked out of a room in the Pixley-Long block at 2 o'clock this morning by Detective Sergeant Junk and Policeman Galentine and booked for disorderly conduct. The men presented the names of the well known Smith brothers—George and Hank—and the women confessed to the stage names of May Sommers and Florence Douglas. All pleaded guilty and all were fined $5 and costs, which Brother George Smith contrived to pay after a session at the telephone. The quartet were having a noisy beer party and other tenants of the block complained.

Came Here From Corunna.

George Fredericks and the eminent Frank Fitzgerald were snaked out of the engine room at the No. 1 pumping station early this morning and were booked for loitering. Fredericks was found unconscious from booze and snugly ensconced on the floor in a closet. He said he was from Corunna, Ind., and was making his way to the home of a friend on Spy Run avenue, when he had an attack of heart failure and had crawled into the pump house. Fitzgerald said he was peregrinating back to his job at an up-country saw mill and went in the pumping station to get warm. He had the frankness to tell the court that he had been "hoisting quite a few" in the city yesterday and last night. He is an old-timer in the city court. Each got a dollar and costs and went to jail.

Other City Court Cases.

Arthur Finker, a plain drunk, was allowed to go, and William Huiet, a loiterer held over from yesterday, was released.

The case against Rosella Craig for neglecting her child was dismissed by Prosecutor Dulin. The woman's husband has filed suit for divorce and custody of the child.

Jessie Koehler, arrested the other day for adultery, on an affidavit filed by her husband, Clell Koehler, was released. She will take her children and go to her mother's home in Arkansas. Her paramour is doing a long term in jail.

Trace Bauer, arrested for assault on August H. Haenel, at whom he is accused of throwing a brick, was continued until March 24.

RUMORS OF NEW CAR STRIKE PLOT

and told of a conference with Gov. Ralston at which, he said, the governor promised to do everything he could to help the union bring about a peaceful settlement.

R. L. Reeves, of Detroit, treasurer of the international union, declared that trouble was the last thing the union was looking for and that he believed the disputes now pending between the company and the men would be settled peacefully. He told the men that the grievance committee would meet with President R. J. Todd again next Monday.

Reeves, it became known today, had a conference with Gov. Ralston yesterday and informed him there was an organization of men in Indianapolis trying to force the street car company here to cause another strike of its employes and in that manner wipe out the union. Reeves says his informant was an officer of the Indiana national guard, but wouldn't give his name. The guardsman, according to Reeves, said it was planned to force the strike Monday or Tuesday night and that it had been arranged to declare martial law immediately. Gov. Ralston denied emphatically that any arrangements had been made for martial law but declared he would not hesitate a minute to take such action if he found it necessary to protect society, which he said he placed above either the union or the street car company. Reeves asked if it wouldn't be advisable to start a grand jury investigation of what he terms the conspiracy. The governor replied that all criminals looked alike to him whether they wore overalls or diamonds and that he would prosecute to the limit of his ability any one in the conspiracy if he found that such a conspiracy existed.

MESSENGER BOY IS BADLY HURT

Rudowske is a messenger boy employed by the Postal Telegraph company. Bischoff was not injured, but his motorcycle was badly damaged.

According to Bischoff, he was riding west on Jefferson street and hearing the bell of an approaching street car shut the power off his engine and slowed down until he was compelled to pedal the heavy machine with his feet. The car passed and Rudowske, who was riding north, struck the motorcycle with terrific force. Bischoff remained with the boy until the patrol wagon came and accompanied him to the hospital. Later he went to the police station, but was told to go on to his work and was not held to blame for the accident.

Cattle Queen Wins Divorce That Will Establish New Rule

New York, March 20.—Mrs. Chas. S. Berry is the owner of considerable land and cattle in California and has won the title of "cattle queen." She has just attained added fame by winning a victory in having her marriage to Chas. S. Berry, the head of a detective agency, annulled by Justice Greenbaum, of the supreme court. This action establishes a policy against recognizing foreign ceremonies following divorces not in conformity with New York practice.

CHARLES H. BUCK IS NOT CANDIDATE

Says Progressives Had No Authority to Use His Name.

THE POLITICAL GOSSIP

Charles H. Buck, Broadway grocery-man, who was a candidate for mayor on the citizens' non-partisan ticket in the last municipal campaign, states that he is not a candidate for county treasurer on the progressive ticket and that the progressives who met Friday were given no authority to use his name even as a probable candidate.

"There is absolutely no truth in the statement published this morning that I am to become the progressive candidate for county treasurer," said Mr. Buck. "I am grateful in a measure that my name was remembered, but I am not in politics and among other things I am a democrat, not a progressive."

Geake Also Out of It.

Attorney William C. Geake also denies that he is a candidate on the progressive ticket. Mr. Geake's name was announced during the bull moose meeting Friday as a candidate for judge of the superior court.

"I was as much surprised over the announcement of my name as were many others in the city who had heard me declare that I would not go on the ticket. I knew nothing about it, did not attend the meeting, and gave nobody the least authority to even suggest my name as a possible progressive candidate for the superior court judgeship or any other office."

According to Allen J. Vesey, chairman of the Twelfth district republicans, Mr. Geake has signified his intention of coming back to the ranks of the republican party, and telephoned this morning denying that he was to be a candidate on the bull moose slate.

Among others named as probable candidates by the progressives Tuesday, besides Mr. Griswold, for trustee of Washington township, and A. J. Baker as commissioner from the Second district, were the following: For auditor, William Root, Perry township; for coroner Dr. C. L. Canada; for trustee of Wayne township, Christian Piepenbrink; Wayne township assessor, A. J. Pembroke.

FREAKISH CASES HAVE SHOWN UP

Anti-Tuberculosis Clinics Develop Many Queer Features

ABOUT THE DISEASE

According to Miss Irene Byron, who is the visiting nurse connected with the Fort Wayne Anti-Tuberculosis society and is in charge of the new clinical offices of the society in the Schmitz building, there are many people in Fort Wayne who think they are afflicted with the disease who really owe their conditions to some different ailment.

One day this week two men applied for examination at the same time and it was found that neither of the men were victims of tuberculosis. In appearance both of them seemed to be in advanced stages of consumption, but the various tests made by the staff physicians showed that one man suffered from a bad liver and stomach and the other's kidneys were out of order and he had suffered a general breakdown.

Both of these men thought, beyond doubt, they had contracted tuberculosis, and in one case the subject's near relatives had died of consumption. The men were told they had no occasion to fear tuberculosis and were also told to go to some physician for treatment of their real ills.

Is Doing Good Work.

The new department of the Anti-Tuberculosis society is doing a great deal of good for hundreds of Fort Wayne's sick people and the free examinations made each day aid the applicants in determining the exact stage of their suffering and each person found to be a sufferer of the disease is given instructions which if followed will in most cases work complete cures. The department is something new in Fort Wayne and adds unlimited strength to the charitable work being done by the society and various other organizations.

The Finances.

Finances to operate the free dispensary represent a portion of Fort Wayne's proceeds from the sale of Red Cross Christmas seals, and Miss Byron has just received a complete report of the sale of seals in Indiana last year. Allen county was the second in the list, having disposed of 175,304 stamps. Marion county came first, with 402,934, but, based on the per capita sale, Allen county led Marion, having 1.85 against the latter's 1.52. The complete report follows:

NEWS OF FORT WAYNE'S NEIGHBORS

MRS. MARY GLOSSER IS DEAD AT 95

Woman Who Had Lived More Than Half Century in Kendallville, Dies of Infirmities of Age.

Kendallville, Ind., March 21.—Mrs. Mary Glosser, aged 95 years, Kendallville's oldest citizen and one of the oldest residents of Noble county and northeastern Indiana, is dead. The end came peacefully. For the last year she had been quite feeble and gradually grew weaker. Six weeks ago she was taken bedfast. From day to day she gradually failed until the last thread of life was broken and she passed into eternal sleep. Although weak, she retained all her mental faculties until the very last, falling into a deep sleep fifteen minutes prior to her death.

Mrs. Mary Glosser was born in Richland county, Ohio, August 27, 1819. Fifty-four years ago she came to this vicinity and had been a continuous resident here ever since. Upon her first visit she saw the country, a vast expanse of woodland, which only in time and by the efforts of the early settlers was cleared and converted into fertile fields. She saw villages and settlements spring up and witnessed Kendallville grow from a mere village to a thriving city.

Although she lacked but five years of being a centenarian, she had been very active prior to her illness of a year ago, and performed little missions about the house which were quite remarkable for a woman of her age. For some years Mrs. Glosser had been making her home with her daughter, Mrs. Frank Lewis, South Main street, where she died. Her husband died about ten years ago.

Surviving are three children, two daughters, Mrs. Frank Lewis, of this city, and Mrs. Almeta Young, of Chicago, and a son, Rigedon Glosser, Allen township, besides a number of grandchildren.

FORMER SCHOOL HEAD DIES.

Lagrange, Ind., March 21.—News came to the Yeagla family at Howe, Thursday, of the death of Samuel D. Crane, who passed away at Dallas, Tex., Wednesday. Mr. Crane had been a resident of Garden City, Kan., since his removal from Lagrange in the 80's. Some time during the early part of the winter he was taken sick and went to his son's at Dallas, Tex., where a short time ago he underwent a surgical operation from which he did not recover. Mr. Crane reached the 79th year of his age. He was a former superintendent of Lagrange county and taught for many years in the schools of the place. He was a man highly esteemed and well known by the older citizens of this part of the state, being prominent in educational matters.

AFTER POSTOFFICE QUARTERS.

Van Wert, Ohio, March 21.—The postoffice department is seeking quarters for the Van Wert postoffice and will take a lease for either five or ten years on a suitable room in an eligible location. The department is after quarters close to the depots to bring it within the stipulated distance that will require the railroads hauling the mail to deliver it. Bids on a room will be received until April 1. There is not believed to be much chance of securing a new room and the postoffice will doubtless remain where it is.

LOOKS LIKE FELTS FOR TOWNSHIP TRUSTEE

The candidacy of Herman W. Felts for trustee of Wayne township before the democratic primaries, is making remarkable headway and voters are coming to his support in great numbers daily. The strength of Mr. Felts' candidacy lies in his recognized and admitted fitness for the place. For eight years he admirably served the people of Allen county as superintendent of the county infirmary and while there demonstrated those qualities of business and humanity which now so well equip him for the duties of trustee in the most populous township of the county. The trustee of Wayne township necessarily has much to do with the care of the poor and destitute who are found in large numbers at all times in the city. A qualified man is a necessity to the interests of the township. Mr. Felts more than any other man who has in many years been a candidate for the place, possesses the essential qualifications. He has always been a loyal and active democrat and both from the party standpoint and his fitness for the place deserves the hearty support he is receiving and merits the office in which he is willing to serve the people of the township.

LACKED BUT THREE YEARS OF CENTURY

Mrs. Keziah Knisely, Oldest Woman in Whitley County, Dies at the Age of Ninety-Seven.

Columbia City, Ind., March 21.—At the Compton church, southeast of this city, there will be buried tomorrow the oldest woman in Whitley county. The deceased is Mrs. Keziah King-Knisely, widow of the late Samuel Knisely, who died at the home of her granddaughter, Mrs. Wallace Wilcox, in Thornecreek township. Had Mrs. Knisely lived three weeks longer she would have reached the age of 97 years. She had been in failing health for several months, but was confined to her bed but a week prior to her death. She possessed her faculties and was rational almost to the last. Previous to coming to Whitley county, she had resided at Sulphur Springs, Ohio, and in that vicinity nearly all of her life.

The deceased was of Scotch-Irish and German descent, and was a daughter of Richard and Polly (Kiefer) King, and was born in Crawford county, Ohio, on April 8, 1817, being 96 years, 11 months and 11 days of age at the time of her death. She was the last of a family of five children. She was united in marriage to Samuel Knisely on Nov. 13, 1834, and he died twenty-four years ago last September. Five children were born to them, three preceding the mother to the grave. One daughter, Mrs. Mary Stewart, of Bucyrus, Ohio, and one son David Knisely, of Goshen, survive her. Eleven grand children, fifteen great grandchildren and five great-great grandchildren also survive her. George Knisely, of this city, and Alex and Emanuel Knisely, of Columbia township, are her nephews, their father having been a brother of her husband.

She was a member of the Methodist church all her life.

Pioneer Citizen of Bluffton Passes at the Age of 83.

Bluffton, Ind., March 21.—Abram T. Studabaker, a pioneer resident and widely know and much respected citizen of Wells county, is dead at his home here at the age of 83 years. His death had been expected for several days. He was born in Darke county, Ohio, the son of William and Sarah (Thompson) Studabaker. In 1839, when he was but nine years old, his parents came to Wells county and located and cleared what is known as the Lewis Markley farm, later moving across the river and clearing another large farm, which was his home until the time of his death. The groundhog was dispatched after a lively battle and the carcass was brought to this city. It weighed eleven pounds.

Irving Monnette was also one of the six men convicted in the United States court. The law under which they were convicted is an old one, passed in the reconstruction days following the civil war to restrain the Ku-Klux-Klan depredations in the states that had seceded.

WILLIAM C. SCWIER FOR COUNTY COMMISSIONER THIRD DISTRICT.

William C. Schwier is a candidate for renomination and election to the office of county commissioner of the Third district. His name will be submitted at the democratic primaries and support is asked upon his record in the office. That portion of his first term already served by Mr. Schwier has served to prove to the people of Allen county that they made no mistake when they elected him to their board of commissioners. He has been a punctual and diligent official and has applied himself with rare energy and intelligence to the problems of county government that are constantly before the board of commissioners. He has shown a ready and vigorous grasp of affairs and has manifested a progressive and at the same time sane and practicable outlook upon public matters. When the county had to deal with the problems created by last spring's great floods he showed that he had ability, foresight and executive capacity. He has stood for economy in public administration, but has not sought cheese-paring or parsimonious saving for the sake of a record at expense of the public welfare. William C. Schwier has made good in the office of commissioner and he deserves as much as any public official ever did the approbation of a second term by decree of the people of Allen county.

THE SENTINEL'S DAILY SCRIPTURE READING.

Matthew 22:1-14.

1 And Jesus answered and spake unto them again by parables, and said,

2 The kingdom of heaven is like unto a certain king, which made a marriage for his son,

3 And sent forth his servants to call them that were bidden to the wedding; and they would not come.

4 Again, he sent forth other servants, saying, Tell them which are bidden, Behold, I have prepared my dinner; my oxen and my fatlings are killed, and all things are ready; come unto the marriage.

5 But they made light of it, and went their ways, one to his farm, another to his merchandise;

6 And the remnant took his servants, and entreated them spitefully, and slew them.

7 But when the king heard thereof, he was wroth; and he sent forth his armies, and destroyed those murderers, and burned up their city.

8 Then saith he to his servants, The wedding is ready, but they which were bidden were not worthy.

9 Go ye therefore into the highways, and as many as ye shall find, bid to the marriage.

10 So those servants went out into the highways, and gathered together all as many as they found, both bad and good; and the wedding was furnished with guests.

11 And when the king came in to see the guests, he saw there a man which had not on a wedding garment;

12 And he saith unto him, Friend, how camest thou in hither not having a wedding garment? And he was speechless.

13 Then said the king to the servants Bind him hand and foot, and take him away, and cast him into outer darkness; there shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth.

14 For many are called, but few are chosen.

Much Misdirected Energy.

There are, we are just told, nearly 22,000 living graduates of our oldest university, Harvard, and a recent census shows that more than a fourth of them are practicing law. It naturally brings up the interesting question as to how many of these 6,000 lawyers are publicly known as leaders in the battle for a better civilization? Louis D. Brandeis is one, and there may be, and probably are, still others. The number, however, is likely to be very small. We need the lawyers—to a degree. Their place in the sphere of human existence is useful, but if instead Harvard had turned out 22,000 trained farmers or mechanics, men who could win their way by creative industry and add to the total of wealth by direct production, wouldn't they and society both have been better off?

Maybe not better off, measured by dollar incomes—for some of the Harvard lawyers get pretty big incomes. But better off in contentment, in the satisfaction which comes from doing things worth while. We've seen few great lawyers who really felt better on the inside after they'd piloted a mendacious corporation through a ticklish bit of sailing close to the law. But we've seen many happy farmers and mechanics—especially when they'd done an honest day's work and come home to a congenial family for a rest that wasn't troubled by an uneasy conscience.

The return of M. O. Eldridge, a government road expert, to the Twelfth district for a series of illustrated lectures on practical road-building, to be given at the suggestion of Congressman Cline, will be helpful and valuable, and will undoubtedly attract unusual interest by reason of the awakened movement for better roads in this section of Indiana. Mr. Eldridge will speak at Fort Wayne, April 13; Columbia City, afternoon, and Churubusco, evening, April 14; Albion, afternoon, and Kendallville, evening, April 15; Butler, afternoon, and Auburn, evening, April 16; Angola, April 17, and Lagrange, April 18.

The Sentinel is pleased to see a definite move on the part of the city administration for a laboratory for the purpose of treating all asphalt, brick, concrete, sand and other materials to be used in public improvement work. It believes the step an excellent one that will give assurance of quality and service that is wholly impossible under any other sort of inspection of material which goes into public work.

Vice-President Marshall, for the second time in his slightly more than a year in the vice-presidential chair, has been called upon to cast a vote in order to break a senatorial tie. Possibly, however, these occasions can hardly be construed as a breaking of that four years of silence into which the vice-president believed he was lapsing a year ago.

---

After all it must be admitted that with one or two conspicuous exceptions, those Indiana democratic leaders who were opposed to the state-wide primary declaration have been able to avoid making wry faces while taking their medicine and to give a very realistic imitation of liking it.

---

That congressional investigation has failed to develop evidence of the existence of a $50,000 fund to defeat the pending Hughes bill to restrict the marketing of convict-made goods will come as a crushing blow to those ambitious but impecunious lobbyists who were doubtless hoping to get a piece of it.

Capt. J. R. Bird Discusses the Workingman and National Guard

By J. R. BIRD,

Captain Co. B, Third Regiment, Indiana National Guard.

Fort Wayne, Ind., March 17, 1914.

To the Editor of The Sentinel: Monday evening, March 16, 1914, there appeared an article headed, "Samuel Gompers Submits Answer."

Some time ago, perhaps ten days, the writer came in contact with some union men who doubted the same statement of Mr. Gompers, which was in "circular information" form. "How can we serve two masters?" said they. "If we belong to the union we can not belong to the militia. In case we are called out on strike we could not do service with the national guard and strikers also. If strikers, as they are termed, can not succeed without riot, destruction of property and lives, the parties who are responsible for the calling of the "walkout" are as guilty of manslaughter as any man who ever took the life or caused the death of a fellow being. The militia, or "tin-willies," are never called unless the situation is beyond police control. It should never be necessary to go beyond policemen for handling any riot or disorder. But "necessity is the mother of invention," and the representative of the people, the governor, must sometimes revert to armed force to restore order. It is very unpleasant for a mother to spank her child, but it must be done in behalf of that child's future career. (If compelled to do right, it means honor and wealth; if allowed to drift, it means dishonor and poverty.) If every militiaman was a union man, or every union man a militiaman, both sides could be appreciated by either. There would be no ill-feeling or partiality on any side.

In these idustrial disputes, or strikes, violence has only too often been resorted to by the strikers or their sympathizers. As soon as the first act of violence is committed, many who have no other interest in the matter than the hope of gain or love of strife, ally themselves on one side or the other, and then as "sympathizers" or "guards" seek profit for themselves in the resulting riot and disorder they actively foment.

This disorderly element is always present in every community and their work, if unchecked would often lead to serious loss to innocent citizens. (All fire insurance is void during a riot. See line 31 of a standard fire insurance policy.)

Where such disturbances are beyond the power of the civil authorities to control, the national guard is called upon to restore order and protect life and property. It is for this reason that the guard is condemned and charged with being organized to shoot down workingmen.

Frequently the question is asked, "Would you shoot your own brother?"

If my brother were a lawbreaker and by his violence endangered the lives of others, would he not be worthy of being shot down as a menace to all the people? Do we not hunt a single murderer, a rapist, a robber, or an arsonist with guns and dogs, no matter what his station in life, and feel satisfaction if he is killed or captured?

Why, then, should not the men who, stirred up by real or fancied wrongs and maddened by inflammatory speeches and liquor, seek to destroy, kill and maim others be not checked in their career, even at the point of a bayonet or with a bullet?

However, the history of our country does not show that the guard is often called upon to fire on a mob. Furthermore, it can be confidently stated that in Los Angeles, Cal., alone more people were killed by the agents of a certain industrial organization than have been killed or wounded by the national guard in all the numerous cases in which it has been called upon to preserve order in industrial disputes.

In most cases the guard, when called upon, acts as a peacemaker and through holding the combatants in check, allows anger to cool and paves the way for arbitration and settlement.

The real safety of all, poor and rich alike, lies in the power of the people to enforce their laws. Not until men cease to fight on the streets, cease to have ambition to lead and exercise authority, cease to crave excitement and enjoy sports, will violence be forgotten. Until that time when locks, safes and strongboxes are unknown, when ambition is dead and pride has flown, will it be possible to dispense with a force potentially strong enough to compel obedience to the laws and consideration for the rights of the third party.

True, but sad, indeed, the national guard in some cases have made mistakes. We must all admit that "a man that never made a mistake never made anything." Soldier- get drunk as lords. Yes; it is a disgrace to the United States army uniform,a disgrace to the Stars and Stripes (Old Glory, an emblem of liberty and peace. No other nation dares trespass where its folds are turned loose to the breeze.) But every male citizen between the ages of 18 and 45 years is a militiaman. (Read the constitution and military law). Therefore, every man between those ages who gets drunk or enters a saloon or ale house is disgracing the uniform as much as the man that is brave enough to wear it. Some women are just as bad, or worse; yes, far worse. It would be glory for God if only all the women were pure. The men would have to be better in order to associate with those above them.

Out of every 2,000 persons entering a saloon or getting drunk, only one is a soldier in uniform. Not so bad after all, is it?

A soldier, like a watch dog, is cuffed about, chained down by restrictions and discipline, fed on the bones and offals of a meal, allowed to brak and tug at his chain with no consideration. But let a stray dog, a cat, chickens, cows or tramps come into your possessions, and want to destroy or steal, and you unchain the dog, pat him on the back and sic him on to the trespasser. He drives them out and returns for another caress or pat on the back; then falls into the kicks and cuffs until something else turns up.

Whenever a soldier is placed upon his proper base, when people begin to "just tolerate" them, when they have sympathy and appreciation of all the people; then will we begin to get the right quality of young men to join our "national protectors," the army and national guard; then will we have the proper and more intelligent class of troops; then will drunks in uniform cease; then will we have more efficiency and a more thoroughly trained army.

While riding on a car during the last few days of the Indianapolis street car strike, the writer, in uniform, heard a boisterous conversation coming from the rear of the car. A man, shabbily dressed, was talking to the conductor, without response, and was remonstrating on account of something or other. The words were lost in a gurgle. On passing him to leave the car a strong odor of liquor emanated from his corner. He was evidently a striker, working about the car barns or such, but the conductor ignored him completely. If this man had saved his money inatead of buying liquor, he would be worth more to the company and himself also. It is not what we make; it is what we save.

Now let us turn to the real cause of the national guard. Note what Mr. Gompers says. He knows as well as any fair-minded person that it is a thing which must live if we expect to have the greatest protection for the lowest cost.

Japan has a standing army of 400,000 men and every male Japanese is taught to carry arms and that his highest duty is to die for his emperor. On her first expedition she can transport 160,000 men and land them on our Pacific coast in forty-five days at the outside. Germany can mobilize a trained army of 1,200,000 in five days and send 200,000 of them across the water in five days more.

Against these forces we have our navy and approximately 75,000 men in the United States army. Of this number 28,000 belong to the cavalry, infantry or artillery regiments. The country has 15,000 men in the Philippines, 2,000 in Alaska, Panama and other countries, and 20,000 occupy set posts in coast artillery. This leaves approximately 28,000 men foot free to mobolize at any point to head off an invasion.

The national guard of the various states provides the only organized reserve that we have. These, when combined, can provide a force of about 120,000 men, more or less trained. To put them in the field as an effective fighting force would take from thirty to sixty days in the present state of their strength, instruction and equipment.

Now about all that the average American knows about our preparedness to withstand a foreign attack is that we have a very efficient navy, a lot of coast defenses, an army and a national guard. He is very prone to believe that all that is needed is the occasion and a call from the president and a million men will rush to arms and march off to whip the enemy inside of forty-eight hours.

He commences to hedge or bluster when he is told that we have not the arms, equipment, ammunition or the transport wagons and animals necessary to put 250,000 men in the field under six months or a year, and that it would take five years to form an army 500,000 strong and get it ready for the field.

Then he gets worried, and if he knows that you know what you are talking about, he gets very indignant at the way we have neglected our system of defense and straightway forgets it all.

This same man would worry himself sick if he should happen to let his fire insurance policy run out; or work himself into a rage if the street railway company or the steam railroad on which he went to and from his business were to suddenly start operating their cars or trains with nine out of every ten men without any experience whatsoever. Yet he is perfectly willing to take the chance of getting into a dispute with a foreign nation and pitting against their trained forces the totally untrained and absolutely ignorant volunteers that we would be compelled to rely upon at the present time.

People will argue and prove conclusively that war is wrong and should be abolished. They will tell you that preparation for war only breeds a desire to fight. On the twentieth day of the Balkan-Turkish war, when it threatened to engulf Europe, the fact became known that England's vast navy was mobilized and ready to put to sea for war. What was the result? Immediately the trouble-breeders in Vienna altered their tune and the spirit of war that was growing over Europe sank away. England by being prepared for war but wanting peace, secured it without firing a shot. Germany's army played the same role on land.

People will talk arbitration: but did not the American people refuse to conclude arbitration treaties with England and France in 1912 because we felt that there were certain questions so vital to us that we could not arbitrate them?

Did not our congress practically tell the world that as we had paid out our good money to build the Panama canal we are going to make all but our own vessels pay tolls thereon? Has not England already protested against that action and is she not backed up by the powers of Europe? Shall we arbitrate that question with the almost certainty that we will be worsted?

Does not our Monroe doctrine keep Germany from securing colonies or spheres of influence" in South America? Has any European power ever acknowledged our right to maintain the Monroe doctrine?

How then are we going to act should any of the above questions become urgent? Submit them to arbitration when we know that the court is against up on grounds of self-interest? Stand on our rights and refuse to either arbitrate or fight? Old women might do that, but not nations.

No! If we are, as a nation, to have any international relations or policies, we must be prepared to sustain them with force and to have that force always in readiness: but at a minimum of expense for maintenance and loss of productive power of its members, we maintain a small standing army and a large, efficient national guard.

As long as men and boys enjoy a contest of skill or strength we are going to have war or the liability of war, and as long as science and training will win in athletic contests, just so long must we train ourselves to handle weapons and use the tools of war with skill. If training won the Olympiad, is not training for war still more necessary?

The greater our skill and ability the less liable we will be called upon to use them seriously, as men as well as nations are naturally inspired more by fear than any other impulse, and nobody will want to try conclusions with us as long as we are their equal, or nearly so, in strength and ability to enforce our policies or necessities.

Arbitration is only possible where either of the disputants is really friendly and it makes no very great difference which way the award is made; or where one disputant is so much stronger than the other that even if he loses all his claim he will not be injured; or if the weaker loses, his weakness will only emphasize the necessity and wisdom of the award.

Universal peace being out of the question and arbitration being only an expedient for the settlement of minor affairs involving no vital principle we must, if we are to maintain a national existence, be prepared to defend ourselves and enforce our national policies.

Unless we are willing and able to trust all to our navy and marine corps, we must provide a land force to support them in case of disaster and to protect their bases of supplies and our coasts from sudden attack. To do this means either a large standing army or a large and efficient national guard. We believe in the latter, and it is therefore our policy to induce all the young men we can to enlist and receive the training we are in position to give them.

It is believed that in the development of this special form of militia, that is, the volunteer organization or national guard, in conjunction with the regular army, the future problem of the military policy of this country is solved. It meets all the conditions required. In developing this force, no matter to what extent, men are not withdrawn from their regular vocations, and therefore from the productive capacity of the country. While filling their regular positions in life, they voluntarily devote a part of their time in preparing themselves for military service. This form of military training does not encourage a prejudice in the minds of the people, but, on the contrary, makes military service popular.

The value of the national guard does not rest alone upon the fact that it is an effective military force for war service. It is also a great educational institution. No one who understands the training can fail to come to the conclusion that the discipline required, the development of physical health and endurance, makes a better class of citizens. Well-informed Germans attribute the present commercial prosperity of Germany to the influence of the military training required of all able-bodied young men.

No other institution is doing more to develop the patriotism of the country. The influence of the national guardsman reaches out into every walk of life and into every community. It is a leaven which raises the average patriotism of our citizens. It is a military school which is preparing thousands of young men for the defense of their country. These men will rally to the colors whenever the safety of our country and its institutions require it.

Our United States national guard is no more like the conscripted levies of continental Europe than day is like night.

The guardsman, whatever his motives for enlisting, soon learns to love the service he is trying to perform for his country, and, if he be of teh right sort, strives earnestly to so perfect his knowledge of his duties that he will not become a burden in time of trouble, but an active part of the nation's army of defense. Can you ask a nobler aim?

The national guard is striving to educate the young Americans how to handle themselves and the weapons used by soldiers so that a force may be created that will compel other nations to remain at peace with us and make the Stars and Stripes really respected wherever it may be flung to the breeze and not torn down and trampled under foot and called a "dirty rag," as is sometimes the case now.

We want you to join with us in this patriotic work.

I believe that it is the holy and patriotic duty of every American to offer himself for his country's service in peace as well as war.

I believe that it is only the preparation and training of all the able-bodied men of the nation that will avert the calamity of foreign war; or if such a war be forced upon us, that we will be able to meet the trained forces of Asia or Europe on something like terms of equality, and by the sacrifice of our lives, if necessary, prevent the hoisting of a foreign flag over our land, or any part thereof.

I believe that no man can efficiently perform the varied duties of a soldier without long and careful training in those duties and the handling of our modern small arms, artillery and other appliances of warfare, as well as a certain knowledge of the principles of military hygiene and sanitation, unless he shall have been first instructed in those things.

I believe that our country needs a larger military organization, properly trained and equipped for war service.

I believe that a fundamental part of the first line of defense of the nation should be a well organized, well equipped and loyally supported national guard.

I believe that the strength of our form of government rests in the ability of its citizens to take up arms effectively in its defense.

I believe that preparedness for war is sure insurance against war.

I believe that training in the national guard will benefit all who receive it and make them better citizens and more efficient producers.

I believe that the lessons of obedience, sobriety, cleanliness and patriotism taught in the national guard will make of its members better citizens, better husbands and better fathers.

I believe that the lessons taught in the national guard will reduce the curse of crimes of violence, will lessen the number of criminals and improve the physical condition of the whole people.

I believe that the young men of today have not lost all their fathers' courage and patriotism and the centuries old love of their race for things that are manly and adventurous. That they will, when fully informed of the need of their cooperation, align themselves in the national guard.

What do I want to submit myself to the possibly tyrannical discipline of the officers for? Why should I run a chance of being put in the guard house or jail just because I failed to obey some fool order or didn't attend drill?

All organizations from kindergartens to armies must have discipline. They all have rules that must be observed, the violation of which is uniformly met with some kind of a penalty.

Without discipline a military organization is a uniformed and armed mob and many times more dangerous than the wildest mob of the Paris commune or an American lynching party.

Without discipline the soldier who tries to do his duty has not only his own work, but that of the maligner and shirker.

Remember this: In the guard the officer is the representative of the laws of the whole people. The soldier is one of the whole people, for he elects his representative, president, governor, congressman or state legislator. The respect and obedience given the officer is therefore respect and obedience to the people. It is the respect the soldier shows himself as a citizen. It is self-respect.

Discipline, no matter how strict, founded on self-respect, can never prove irksome except to him who has no self-respect.

Military discipline teaches patriotism, love of the law, cleanliness, physical perfection, good manners.

The soldier is not at the mercy of an autocrat, overbearing officer. He is protected by laws and regulations far more thoroughly than is the clerk in the store, or the man in the shop from the petty tyranny of foremen or bosses, and dockage and discharge for spite or malice.

Organization.—From the moment of enlistment the man becomes the part of a systematic and regulated whole, and as he continues he is trained in the forming of the machine and its operation. He learns to appreciate what advantages accrue from organization and what is necessary to secure it. The whole aim of military discipline is toward securing organization.

Persistence.—The work of the drillmaster in the recruit exemplifies this characteristic from the beginning and as the recruit develops into the soldier he finds that this quality must be developed at every drill.

Promptness.—Military promptness is proverbial. It is taught and required at all times.

Reliance.—Sure dependence. The well-trained soldier can always be depended upon to do his duty because every bit of training that he has received has taught him the necessity of careful attention to orders and instruction, and moreover, he has learned to overcome obstacles and meet emergencies.

Resource.—Not until a man has been brought face to face with an emergency can it be determined how well he can meet it, but the soldier is constantly being trained in order to develop this faculty and scarcely a day passes in camp or on the march that opportunities of practice are not met. The old soldier is well known for his expedients under trying conditions.

System.—The regular method and order of a soldier's life and instruction teaches system as the foundation of the whole.

Tact.—In order to pass well with his fellows, this faculty is required and its development comes with the attainment of promotion and responsibility.

Temperance.—The effort of all the teaching in the guard is toward moderation in all things but laudible effort. The requirement of effort demands that excesses should be limited if not eliminated.

Unless we have the support of the citizens as a whole we will never have an efficient organization. The young men of the city are only too willing to become citizen soldiers, but the public prejudice is against them. On the other hand, some do not enter because some ignorant boys or others probably worse call them "tin-willies," etc. It takes a stout heart to do anything these days, and the fellow that can not stand such as this for his country's sake will never do anything for his friends that will amount to anything.

Every young man in Fort Wayne should receive the training necessary to fit him for any emergency in time of peace or war.

Those interested may talk the matter over with Capt. James R. Bird, 319 Dawson street.

PRESS ON NEW YORK GOVERNOR AND FARM LABOR.

Will Accomplish Good.

Watertown Standard: "If the state continues its effort to provide employment for the idle in New York city upon farms it will accomplish a great deal of good."

Improbable.

Louisville Courier-Journal: "It is improbable that there are among the unemployed who stormed a church in New York, for shelter, many men who would settle down to farm labor and prove acceptable to employers."

Only as a Stop-Gap.

Pittsburg Dispatch: "We confess to the belief that a majority of the unemployed will accept farm labor only as a stop-gap, to be abandoned as soon as industry offers something more immediately remunerative."

Only by Experience.

Troy Northern Budget: "It may seem to some that it would be easy for city men to learn how to do farm work, but that is a trade in which value is acquired only by experience."

Those Who Want Work.

Baltimore American: "Gov. Glynn's undertaking will give work for those who want work, but he will have to leave it to the New York police to take care of the rest."

A Wondrous Change.

Cincinnati Enquirer: "A thousand men and women each week distributed throughout the farming districts of New York would work a wondrous change in the productions of the farms of the state."

Farmers Resent Idea.

Watertown Times: "Farm labor requires some skill as well as other occupations, and farmers rather resent the idea that any sort of man is good enough to work on the farm."

Rural Population.

Albany Times-Union: "The rural population can not supply the farms with workers. If these are not to come back out of the city on to the farms, from what other places can they come?"

JONES' IMAGINATION.

(Pittsburg Dispatch.)

Senator Jones, of Washington, improves a little on Foraker's and Count Reventlow's charge, although his statement of the affair is evidently based on the Reventlow invention. He says that Wilson gives up the free tolls job to keep foreign powers from intervening in Mexico, which he declares to be "cowardly" and terms it the surrender of the Monroe doctrine "to the very powers against which it was invoked."

This indicates the need of instructing a United States Senator as to what the Monroe doctrine really is. It is not necessary to pass on Canning's claims that he "called in the new world to redress the balance of the old." But it is certain that its enunciation received the hearty support of the British government at the start, and has been well observed by it since then with the exception of a little confusion in the Venezuelan affair. The best illustration of this was given in the Mexican affair of half a century ago. Lord John Russell agreed to have England join in collecting debts claimed from Mexico, which was in accord with the Monroe doctrine, but distinctly specified that she would take no part in setting up a government for Mexico. When it became evident that France was to engage in setting up an empire, England promptly withdrew.

England has a perfect right, so far as the Monroe doctrine is concerned, to send an expedition to punish the death of Benton. But it was early recognized in the statements made in parliament that in present conditions it was impossible for her to reach those responsible. Therefore, England simply rests on her claim. The United States has nothing to do with the matter except as a friend to England.

But Senator Jones adds a new feature by declaring that there is a further bargain, that England is to get reparation for its losses in confederate bonds during the civil war. This is interesting as a test of the activity of Senator Jones' imagination, which rises superior to the enactments of the fourteenth amendment to the constitution.

CITY LIGHT & POWER WORKS

Phone 340.

No. 6

Little more than fifteen years ago city of Fort Wayne was paying $120 per arc lamp for public illumination, "moonlight schedule." Today the charge against the city for arc lamps lighted by city current is $50 per lamp. Fort Wayne, then a city of about 45,000 population, was illuminated by 225 arc lamps. Today Fort Wayne, a city of 70,000 population is illuminated by over 600 arc lamps and about eight miles of ornamental lighting systems, tungsten or arc.

While there has been an increase of 65 per cent. in population there has been an increase of over 300 per cent. in the efficiency of public illumination.

The possibilities, both as to efficiency and cost of public illumination under municipal production of current, have merely been indicated; there will be further progress. What the city is able to do in the matter of lighting the streets has been made possible by the development of commercial business for the Municipal Lighting and Power Plant.

Current has been made lower to private consumers than it ever was before by the advent of the city into the field of the electric lighting and power business. These possibilities have been but touched. Current for household consumers was 100 per cent. higher under the old order, when the city was paying a corporation $120 per arc light for public illumination, than it now is to domestic users. Municipal enterprise has hammered the rates for public and private lighting down together. The people are constantly getting the benefit. Hundreds of thousands of dollars have been saved. Millions of dollars will be saved. The loyalty of the people to their own lighting and power works will make the saving.

EXPECT GREATEST DAY OF CAMPAIGN

Publicity Committee of Go to Church Movement Do Novel Advertising.

OTHER CHURCH NEWS

The officers and committeemen of the Go-to-Church movement which was started in this city March the first and which has had good success so far expect the greatest day of the campaign tomorrow. Gains have been made each Sunday at those churches who have kept a record. The average increases in attendance for the past three Sundays were respectively, 28 per cent 42 per cent and 48 per cent and it is expected that tomorrow this will almost reach 60 per cent.

Some novel advertising has been done this week by the publicity committee and done it in such a way that it would not escape the eye of the public. One of the largest means of advertising was the putting up of 50 large bill board posters which were donated to the committee by the Fort Wayne Bill Board Posting company. Another one which almost everyone in the city could see was the large green sign on the top of the roof of the Swinney block close to Transfer Corner.

All the motion picture shows are showing slides this afternoon and will continue to use them this evening. The committee in charge has a surprise for the public in the up-town district this evening. They refused to tell what it would be but it is thought that scenes of some sort inspiring the people to attend church will be shown on a screen at Transfer Corner.

WOULD CURB DISCRIMINATION.

Oil Jobbers' Association Considers National Law as Remedy.

Kansas City, Mo., March 21.—Discussion of a proposed national anti-discrimination law was heard at the convention of the Western Wholesale Oil Jobbers' association today. The subject was introduced in an address by S. D. Hastings, of Green Bay, Wis., who recently was in Washington, where the matter was placed in the hands of judiciary committee of the house of representatives. Members of the association, made up of independent oil dealers, asserted large oil corporations could at present cut rates to a ruinous level in one state and make up the loss in another while the various state anti-discrimination laws were avoided by selling agreements. A national law, they said, would prevent this.

MATERIALS ARE READY FOR TEST

Grace Construction Company So Informs Board of Public Works.

THE MUNICIPAL NEWS

Martin J. Martin, head of the Grace Construction company, called at the city hall today and informed the board of works that the materials that he will use in the construction of streets for which he had contracted are ready for test. He stated to the board that he strongly approved the plan for municipal test of materials that enter into public work and that he hoped the board would be prepared at once to subject his materials to scientific test.

Mr. Grace also informed the board that he would like to begin work on his contracts by the first of April and wanted to be directed as to what work the board desired to have undertaken first. It is probable that some contracts covering a few short streets carried over from last year will be taken up at the start. The Grace company has just purchased two new rollers of new type and ten asphalt wagons and has contracted with the Bass Foundry and Machine works for a large new boiler to be installed at the asphalt plant.

The purchase of equipment for the proposed municipal testing laboratory was further discussed today by Mayor Hosey, the board of works and City Chemist Schott. It seems practically decided that the equipment will be installed in the city laboratory just as soon as it is determined precisely what is needed.

FIX WIDTH OF STATE STREET.

Much Vexed Matter is Settled by the Board of Works.

Mayor Hosey, Messrs. Singrey, Kelly and Hilgeman, of the board of works, and City Engineer Randall met the property owners along State street out on that thoroughfare during the forenoon and fixed the width of it, a matter that has been buffetted about for a long time. The street will have a general width of fifty-five feet, though one or two places it will be wider than that. Along the Forest Park and Driving Park additions, which front each other, there will be a greater width.

The Indiana school for feeble minded youth has an extensive frontage on State street and the fence of the property will have to be moved back five or six feet. It will be necessary to go to the Indiana legislature for authority to alienate this land from the state holdings.

Along the greater part of the frontage preparations will be made at once to put down sidewalks.

LAKESIDE WANTS FIRE STATION.

Councilman Jacob Agne, of the First ward, last night presented to the board of safety the necessity of a fire station in either Lakeside or Forest park. The Lakeside location seems to be preferred. Mr. Agne pointed out that much of the territory is remote from a fire station and that there is no fire equipment at all in the great region lying east of the St. Joe and north of the Maumee rivers. The board has the matter under advisement, but the outlook for anything this year is not flattering. A fireproof building to shelter the electric fire signal station will be the first concern of the board in considering extension of the fire department. The board of park commissioners petitioned the board of safety to place a police call box in the center of Reservoir park and the matter will be considered.

CLERK M'CARTHY TO RETURN.

Dennis J. McCarthy, clerk of the board of safety, and private secretary to Mayor Hosey, will return this evening from the Knapp sanitarium at Rome City, where he has been spending the last three weeks for the benefit of his health. He was ordered by his physician to seek rest and treatment at that place. Word from him brings the pleasing information that his condition is much improved.

PHOTO OF EQUESTRIAN STATUE.

The park board has received a fine photograph of the equestrian statue recently erected in Louisville, Ky., to Gen. John B. Castleman, for many years president of the board of park commissioners of that city. It is an imposing memorial, and is additionally noteworthy from the fact that General Castleman is yet alive. The board desired the photograph for its value in giving an idea of a monument to Gen. Anthony Wayne, for which a fund has been accumulating many years in Fort Wayne.

TO KEEP HOSE DRY.

The city tool house on North Clinton street will be equipped with a frame tower designed to hang the hose used by the street and sewer department upon in order that it may be properly drained. The board of works recently purchased 600 feet of new hose for that department.

FIRE AT BERGHOFF BREWERY.

Wooden Partition in Office Building Was Burned Out.

INTERURBAN HITS AUTO.

BROTHER SYLVES ONE STRONG MAN

But He Uses His Strength in Trying to Put Old John Barleycorn Out.

NEWS OF THE COURTS

Elizabeth Harshbarger asserts in her divorce complaint to the superior court that her husband, Sylvester Harshbarger, began right off the reel after their marriage to go bad, treating her with cruelty and inhumanity, his special line being to curse and to call her names that she feels delicate about putting in her complaint. She says he spends all his time and money for liquor, is a habitual drunkard and has not supported her. For a period of five years she says she has been compelled to keep boarders and lodgers in order to have something to eat and wear and keep a roof over her head.

Jury Gives Lawyer Verdict.

The circuit jury that heard the case of Emmett V. Harris against William Stuck, jr., to recover an attorney's fee of $33 brought in a verdict for the plaintiff, awarding him the full amount of his claim and taxing the defendant with the costs, that will be considerable. The case had come into the circuit court on appeal by Stuck.

Notes of the Courts.

Judge Yaple in the superior court has granted a divorce to Dorothy Anspach from Jesse Anspach and given her the custody of a minor child.

The divorce suit of Rose G. Carpenter against James F. Carpenter has been dismissed from the superior court.

The suit of Cass vs. Alden has been sent to Wells county for trial on change of venue from the Allen superior court. The case has twice been tried in the Allen county courts.

In the superior court Judge Yaple has set the case of Mendenhall vs. Metzger for trial April 14.

In the divorce of Anna Kline against George H. Kline, in hearing before Judge Yaple in the superior court this afternoon, it was developed that George sought the lady and took her from the jail flats in January, 1911, just a few weeks before a lot of ladies lost their happy homes down there when the red lights were doused. It was a more or less typical case of the kind. She charged brutality and he said she got a revolver and threatened to kill him if he did not return to her.

It was expected that Edward Schiller, held for forgery, would be arraigned in the circuit court late this afternoon.

The orchestra will play a movement from the second Beethoven symphony, which may be termed an ambitious undertaking for a local organization, and the rest of the program will be in keeping with the policy of the orchestra to present good music. This does not mean that the program will be unusually heavy—quite a number of very tuneful numbers are on the program, which will appeal to all. Mr. Stoeber, the soloist, is a master of his instrument, as all will testify who heard him four years ago at a recital in Elks' hall. His technic is unlimited and his tone a source of delight to all.

TALKS TO PARENT-TEACHER CLUB.

Judge Eggeman at Clay School Suggests Better Home Training.

At a meeting of the Clay school parent-teacher club last evening Judge John Eggeman gave the principal address which concerned the bringing up of children. Parents, Judge Eggeman believes, are at the root of the results in the development of character in children. If parents do not teach their children right morals, a belief in religion, and send them to school, they can not expect to have good boys and girls.

His experience in the juvenile court has led Judge Eggeman to see the need of a right home environment. He firmly believes in the need of the teaching of a Christian religion, no matter of what creed or faith. The quality or mercy and the need of sympathy are necessary factors in the successful directing of the child. He quoted the old Mosaic law and contrasted it with the law of Christ. The juvenile court in this city does not permit any juvenile offender to be placed in jail. If a child is arrested he is permitted to go on his own recognizance. "In all cases but two offenders failed to put in an appearance at the proper time," said Judge Eggeman. Not being a believer in criminal heredity Judge Eggeman probably is more willing to take chances on the reforming of the juvenile offender. He therefore commended the probation school and urged a kindly and more sympathetic attitude on the part of the teachers. In discussing his work in the juvenile court the speaker told of his efforts to get offenders to tell the truth. He deplored the tendency to lie, but said in extenuation of the boy offender that in 369 cases in 1913 in the juvenile court investigation of the homes of the children proved the fault was there. Said the judge:

"Juvenile offenders are products of the city, not of the country. They are products of homes of poverty, ignorance and vice. As this city grows and becomes more cosmopolitan, our juvenile offenders will increase. The blame is in the home and the juvenile offender needs pity."

WILL MEET IN NEW ALBANY.

Indiana Branch of King's Daughters and Sons Convenes Soon.

The tenth annual convention of the Indiana branch of the International Order of the King's Daughters and Sons will be held in New Albany the coming week, beginning on Wednesday afternoon in a meeting of the executive board, and closing on Friday noon. A central council member will be elected at this convention. The convention guests will be Miss Jennie Benedict, of Kentucky, and Mrs. W. E. Norvell, of Nashville, Tenn. New Albany club women will give a reception for visiting ladies on Friday afternoon.

The state officers who are to go from Fort Wayne are Mrs. Harry L. Askew, state president; Mrs. Robert L. Harding, assistant president, and Miss Margaret Vesey, formerly president of the Indiana organization. There will also be representatives from the seven circles in the city—the Mildred Wilson, the Fidelity, Hope, Good Cheer, Opportunity, Sophie B. Wright and the St. Cecelia circles.

After the reception on Friday afternoon the state officers and past officers are to go to Maplehurst, the home of Mrs. J. William Jefferson at Glenarm, Ky., twenty miles from Louisville, where they will form a house party over Sunday.

The Modern Americans will give a public pedro party Monday afternoon at Dehm's hall.

Make This and Try It for Coughs

This Home-Made Remedy has no Equal for Prompt Results.

Mix one pint of granulated sugar with ½ pint of warm water, and stir for 2 minutes. Put 2½ ounces of Pinex (fifty cents' worth) in a pint bottle; then add the Sugar Syrup. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours.

This simple remedy takes hold of a cough more quickly than anything else you ever used. Usually conquers an ordinary cough inside of 24 hours. Splendid, too, for whooping cough, spasmodic croup and bronchitis. It stimulates the appetite and is slightly laxative, which helps end a cough.

This makes more and better cough syrup than you could buy ready made for $2.50. It keeps perfectly and tastes pleasant.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of Norway white pine extract, and is rich in guaiacol and other natural pine elements which are so healing to the membranes. Other preparations will not work in this plan.

Making cough syrup with Pinex and sugar syrup (or strained honey) has proven so popular throughout the United States and Canada that it is often imitated. But the old, successful mixture has never been equaled.

A guaranty of absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded, goes with this preparation. Your druggist has Pinex or will get it for you. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

REDSKIN GIVES PALEFACE BROTHER ONLY REAL AMERICAN DANCE.

Posed especially for the Daily Sentinel by Beaulieu, a Sioux Indian, and a "pale face" girl.

At last we have it—the real, genuine, blown-in-the-bottle American dance. Get that "American."

For a century or more we have been dancing imported steps. Now a true American, with royal blood in his veins, Clarence Rudolph Beaulieu, descendant of an Indian princess, has given American society an indigenous dance rivaling the maxixe in spirit and likely to become as great a fad of the season in exclusive ball rooms.

Beaulieu calls his dance the "Aborigine." It is derived, in most part, from the well-known buck-step, or regulation war dance, common to almost all the Indian tribes. Some of its steps, however, are taken from the "trail dance" of the Chippewa and Sioux tribes, in which the peculiar pivoting on the heels, called the "squaw walk," is introduced. Beaulieu suggested that an occasional war whoop and some swinging of the arms and stooping would add charm and joyousness to the dance.

Study of the following directions and of the accompanying picture posed for Beaulieu and a "pale face" girl, will make the dance clear. Beaulieu, who is a music student in Minneapolis, says that it can be done to any two-four time.

Figure I.

This is the identical war-dance step full foot on the floor, then a short advance skip on ball of same foot; repeat with other foot. Four beats forward and four back. Stooping posture and waving arms increase jollity of this figure.

Figure II.

Figure III.

Work of Woman's Franchise League

Conducted by Dr. Carrie Banning, Chairman District Press Committee, Woman's Franchise League of Indiana.

The National Suffrage board urges the Woman's Franchise League of Indiana to co-operate with them and all the other states of the Union in organizing a simultaneous open-air demonstration, to be held in all the cities and in all the small communities of our state, the second day of May, 1914, at 12 noon:

The program declared is:

A song.

An address.

Resolutions to be sent to congress.

National hymn of suffrage faith.

It is hoped that our counties will organize franchise leagues and co-operate in carrying out this program in every county. Every community has able women deeply interested in this subject. We hope they will unite to carry this work forward.

The central committee of Allen county wishes to announce that our work is now organized, and that we desire to help carry forward this campaign of education in every community. We will send you speakers to talk on suffrage and help you organize franchise leagues, should you so desire. However, the prime object is not to organize the leagues so much as to work through the organizations already established, and we urge each one to have suffrage talks in order to educate their respective communities in the suffrage point of view. Will all those who desire speakers or help in any way write to the chairman of their district?

The third annual suffrage convention will meet at Indianapolis May 5, 6, 7 and 8. We hope to have many delegates from this district. The psychical moment seems to be here when women all over the country feel they should take their place as citizens in the United States. I believe the clubs are largely responsible for this sentiment. Through our modern club methods and organization we have been doing a remarkable work in studying our modern problems. Through our organization we have carried on a great work in transforming community life to higher standards of civilization. But we realize the power behind the throne is not half so effective as a more direct method.

All legislation is to serve the American people—the American home. These problems belong to us quite as much as to the men. To deprive half the nation of its expression on these vital subjects does not express that freedom, that patriotism of which we boast.

The Illinois women have done a wonderful work, the benefits of which are already apparent to those who are watching the results closely. Michigan, Ohio, Kentucky are all splendidly organized. Prominent club women are giving up for the time being every other department of work because they feel that in the end they can accomplish more for a better civilization through a vote than by any other means.

The Twelfth district has been very slow in taking an active part in this vital subject, yet those who are deeply interested in reform work realize it is the first, most vital step. Will not all those who are interested co-operate with us in carrying this work forward?

ADDIE B. GUILDLIN,
Chairman Twelfth District.

Few Oppose Suffrage.

In Massachusetts the Anti-Suffrage association has been collecting signatures of women against suffrage ever since 1895. In eighteen years it has not succeeded in getting the names of 4 per cent. of the women of the state. In the country at large, despite urgent and widely-published appeals from the antis, not 1 per cent. of the women have enrolled themselves in their ranks. Yet this fraction of 1 per cent. call themselves "the majority of women."

Can New York Catch Up?

Women and "men of good will" in New York have lately been working hard, and mostly in vain, to get some improvements that have already been secured in suffrage states.

The aldermen have just turned down a request that when men are sent to the workhouse for refusing to support their wives and children, some partial support shall be furnished to their families. The state of Washington has a "lazy husband law," whereby a man found guilty of this offense may be put to work and his earnings applied to the support of his family. There is a like provision in Colorado.

An effort has also been made to get in New York the "tin plate law" in force in Oregon and some other places, whereby the name of the owner of every building must be displayed on a little tin plate on its front. This is uncomfortable for owners of ramshackle tenements and houses of ill-fame.

In addition, the New York firemen have been begging for the "two-platoon system." This was lately adopted in Spokane. Here the firemen's wives turned out and voted for it, and not only voted, but stood at the polls wearing white badges and urging the other voters to allow them and their husbands some chance for family life. Their watchword was, "We want our husbands at home part of the time." The antis are greatly concerned lest the home should suffer if the wife takes half an hour a year to vote; but most of them are perfectly willing that husbands should be worked fourteen hours a day and should have no home life whatever.

J. R. Medsker left this morning for a visit with relatives in Chicago. Before returning home he will visit Logansport, Indianapolis and Louisville, Ky.

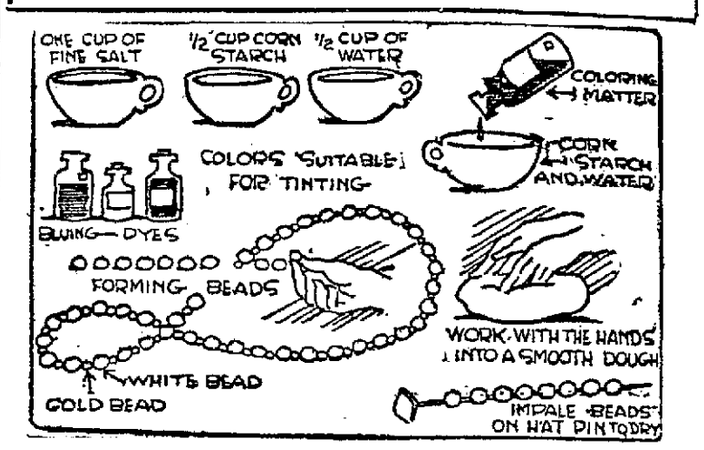
Making Beads of Salt is Popular Pastime—Here's How It's Done.



Fudge-making as a popular pastime appears to have been abnegated in favor of "salt beads." Our artist has drawn a design, illustrating the process, so that little girls who cannot read can now make salt beads if they want to.

The recipe is herewith given. Will all who ever expect to make salt beads or want to make salt beads, kindly preserve this recipe? Paste it in a scrapbook or frame it; keep it in any event. If you please.

Take one cup of fine table salt and heat it very hot. Dissolve one-half cup cornstarch in one-half cup water. With the cornstarch solution mix the coloring matter, which may be bluing, Easter egg dye or red ink for salmon pink. To make black beads, use black ink.

Remove the salt from the fire and add the colored mixture. Work with the hands into a smooth dough. Wrap it in a damp cloth, and break off pieces of equal size, molding them into beads. String beads on hatpin, a knitting needle or a fine wire, and dry several days. They shrink in drying. To polish, rub the beads with a cloth which has been dipped in sweet oil.

String with steel or gilt beads between the colored ones. Pure white beads altered with gilt beads are pretty.

AT THE MAJESTIC.

This Evening—William Hodge in "The Road to Happiness."

Thursday Evening—George Arliss in "Disraeli."

Friday Evening—Return Engagement of Ethel Barrymore in "Tante."

WILLIAM HODGE TONIGHT, IN "THE ROAD TO HAPPINESS."

The continuing of the story of the play in the curtain calls by Mr. Wm. Hodge's company in "The Road to Happiness," was the cause of much comment by the audience in attendance at the twenty-two weeks' run of the play in the Chicago Garrick. On the opening night of the play thirty-nine curtain calls were had. The number of calls have never run below thirty and on Wednesday matinees it was no uncommon occurrence for the audience to demand over half a hundred.

A peculiar feature about the calls was noticed by Mr. Hodge, that the number never varies at the closing of the third act. There were ten calls in this act the night the play opened—and there have been ten calls at each performance since. No reason has been advanced for this by either Mr. Hodge or any member of the company. The greatest variation in number of curtain calls is to be found in the first and last acts. In the first act, the opening night, there were thirteen curtain calls; on the next night this number was increased to seventeen. There has never been less than eight to this act.

GEORGE ARLISS IN "DISRAELI" THURSDAY.

The first appearance of George Arliss in Louis N. Parker's comedy, "Disraeli," at the Majestic theater on Thursday evening, under the management of the Liebler company, promises an engagement of unusual interest.

Mr. Parker has chosen for the theme of his play that period of the life of Disraeli when he concerned himself chiefly with an attempt to possess the key to a far continent and to make his sovereign, the queen of England, also empress of India. The story shows the effort of the Dizzy to interest the Bank of England in his scheme to acquire the canal and the efforts of emissaries of foreign countries to prevent this acquisition by Great Britain. One of these spies, working in the interest of Russia, is a Mrs. Travers, posing as a lady of society. Another spy is her husband, Mr. Foljambe, whom the apparently unsuspecting premier has taken into his office the better to watch him.

At a fashionable house party, where Disraeli and his wife, Lady Beaconsfield, are guests, they meet a young nobleman, Lord Charles Beresford, whose stupidity appears to be equalled only by his open dislike to Disraeli. This is just the material on which the minister likes best to work. It is not long before Dizzy has overcome Charles' prejudices and instilled a burning desire to shine in diplomacy, in a breast hitherto given over to bias and impracticalities not to speak of a strong and pedantic love for the beauteous Lady Clarissa Pevensy.

Disraeli must send a personal representative to the sultan to close the matter of the canal; and he must send some one who will not be suspected of such a connection; otherwise unsurmountable obstacles would be placed in the path of the envoy, as the premier well appreciates. Charles is his selection. No one would credit his bull-headed young lordship with the brains to bring so momentous a mission to a successful conclusion no one, that is, save the trustful Clarissa.

And so Lord Charles goes to Egypt, and after a series of strange and wonderful adventures, he gets what he is after and cables his news to Disraeli, who is tending his famous peacocks at his country home and sparring for time with his secret enemies. The brilliant premier, by a coup made up in equal parts of constructive statesmanship and shrewd human nature, obtains the canal, and thereby realizes his cherished dream of having Queen Victoria declared empress of India.

ETHEL BARRYMORE,
Who Returns to the Majestic Next Friday Evening in "Tante."

The story is immensely dramatic and the production elaborate scenically, particularly the brilliant last act, representing the reception hall in Downing street just before the presentation to the queen. The costumes of the period—the early 70's—lend the play attractive pictorial qualities.

Mr. Arliss' company includes Violet Heming, Florence Arliss, Margaret Dale, Leila Repton, Lilla Campbell, Charles Harbury, Oscar Adye, Arthur Eldred, Henry Carvill and Dudley Digges.

MISS ETHEL BARRYMORE TO RETURN IN "TANTE."

Extremely welcome announcement is made of the return to the Majestic for one performance only, Friday evening, of Miss Ethel Barrymore in "Tante," in which comedy she has achieved without question the most emphatic success of her career, her artistic portrayal of the world-renowned, over-temperamental pianiste bringing to her a triumph in fitting succession to her splendid earlier acting in "Mid-Channel," "Alice-Sit-by-the-Fire," and "The Witness for the Defense." C. Haddon Chambers is responsible for the play itself, having made it from the novel of the same name by Anne Douglas Sedgwick. While Mr. Chambers has followed the principal incidents recalled by the readers of the novel, he has not hesitated to make the changes in Tante's character necessary in the transition from the book to the stage. In the play Madame Okraska, called Tante by her intimates, is less vivacious, selfish, cynical and abnormal than in the novel, although she still remains the artificial, affected, over-temperamental celebrity, living on the adoration of the admirers about her, posing for effect always, insincere and emotional, but always amusing even in her weaknesses.

The delightful dialogue of Mrs. Sedgwick's novel has been enhanced by Mr. Chambers' own work, and at Miss Barrymore's hands it is read with a delightful spontaneity and sparkle. In fact, Miss Barrymore's performance is the most wonderfully fine and finished of her career.

Charles Frohman has surrounded Miss Barrymore with a distinguished company, including as it does, Charles Cherry, Haidee Wright, Eileen Van Vierne, Mabel Archdall, Mrs. Thomas Whiffen, William Tugersoll and E. Henry Edwards. The four acts of "Tante" have been equipped scenically by Mr. Frohman in the most exquisite taste, and the four present splendid specimens of the scene-builders' art.

"HOOT MON!" LOOKE WHOSE 'ERE."

Its ye Bennie Heiland Lads and Lassies, touring under the title of the "Kinkaide Kilties" and offering a Scotch musical Revue at the Empress next week.

Eleven Kinkaide Kilties to Topline New Bill at Empress

Well, ye lads, here's a rare treat for all the clans. Whether ye be Scotch, Irish, Dutch or Swede, or an offspring many times removed from any of that stock, ye will enjoy the new week's bill at the Empress, headed by the Eleven Kinkaide Kilties, in a revue of Scotch song and dances. Big, bright, brilliant bills have become a habit at the Empress, so that it is not necessary to ask, for you can be positive that it's a good show. Few faces you have ever seen before, no acts that are timeworn, but the newest novelty creations of this and the old world are used in making up these Sullivan & Considine shows. When you stop to consider that these same shows, without a single change, travel to the Pacific coast and back again, spending a week in nearly every large city along the route, it can be understood that Fort Wayne is being served with some mighty big shows at little money by the Empress management. Another feature of the Empress policy permits those who so desire to occupy a splendid seat at any evening performance for ten cents, while a main floor seat can be secured for twenty cents. There are hundreds of good seats at either price for every performance.

The coming week's bill will prove no exception to the rule already established concerning the quality of shows. Headlined by the Kilties in their revue, the bill has a feature to be boasted of. They will render a delightful melody of mirth and music that has made them famous throughout the length and breadth of their native country. There is a rhythm and swing to Scotch songs and ballads that set the feet swinging and one can not help join in the chorus of such old-time melodies as "Annnie Laurie," "The Maid of Dundee," "In the Gloaming," and other classics. There are six young and pretty lassies and five laddies, each and every one a soloist.

Here is another one for the boys: Skating on ice, and real ice at that, in the theater. Once at the New York Winter Garden a similar stunt was presented, but never in vaudeville, for strangely enough the trio coming to the Empress own all the stage rights. This week at the Empress marks their first appearance in America, they having come direct from the Follies Marigny, Paris, for the Sullivan & Considine tour. Nearly a carload of equipment is necessary in the presentation of this act, and the ice surface will cover practically the entire stage. On the smooth surface the Three Harbys will demonstrate the fastest and most wonderful exhibition of skating ever witnessed. At a recent winter carnival held at the Crystal Palace in London, the Hardys who eight out of ten contests in a field of 500 competitors. Not only is the skating exhibition wonderful, but the dancing done on the bars of steel is a source of delight to the eye. The Hardys show the correct Argentine tango on the skates.

The Empress never depends upon one or two acts to make a bill, but invariably submits a quintette of uniform quality. This week will be no exception. Savoy and Brennan promise one of the comedy hits of the year. They go at their work with a rush and a roar that has everybody holding their sides from sheer exhaustion. Savoy, who essays the role of the chorus woman, is not the type of female impersonator we have in mind's eye, but of the humorous type made famous by George Monroe.

Geehan and Ryder will present their delightful program of ballads, old and new, and late day "rags." Here are two exceptional voices and they have arranged a program of song selections that will delight every one.

The Todd-Nards are splendid athletes and they will offer an amazing series of physical exploits, which place them in the front ranks of acrobats and jumpers. Some of the many tricks they perform are head-stands, tumbling, leaping etc. Trick after trick is done with a precision and ease that startles.

There will be the usual silver souvenir matinee on Thursday afternoon, when a complete assortment of spoons, etc., will be on hand. There will be a "Scotch Country Store" on Friday night, and something out of the ordinary in the way of prizes and fun can be expected.

Trust the Temple to Tickle the Tastes of City's Critical Crowds

With a wonderfully complete bill of five Keith big time acts and a reel of those always interesting and instructive Mutual Weekly pictures, the vaudeville offering the Temple has in store for its patrons the first four days of the week; with a Tuesday matinee bargain day when every lady attending will be given a handsome silver teaspoon as a souvenir from the Temple, and with the Lichtsinn & Peters Corner Grocery store scheduled for Tuesday night, certainly Temple patrons are in for a big week.

The bill itself scarcely needs introduction aside from the mere mention of the names of the acts to vaudeville addicts who follow their favorite acts. For instance the bill is to be headlined by "The Six Musical Cuttys." Now there's enough for anyone that follows vaudeville acts, as the Cuttys are unquestionably alone in the field of musical acts and to make their work all the more interesting the individual performers actually are all members of one family. They are coming here directly from the Palace Music hall, Chicago's big Keith house, where for the last week they featured the show, scoring their usual big hit. The act is by far the highest priced musical act on the road and is one of the highest priced acts even the Temple ever booked. The Cuttys will feature their own latest song successes, "The Lass I Loved in Killarney" and "My Old Girl." This sextet of musicians, three men and three women, wear beautiful costumes and the act is one of the most handsomely staged now on the vaudeville circuit.

However, all the music in the program will not be confined to the activities of the "Six Cuttys," as the "Three Dolce Sisters," a trio of lovely young women with markedly excellent voices, are also on the week's layout. These young women sing their solos in excellent style but it is in their trio work that they are at their best.

A pretentious manikin act put on by Horace Lamb is another of the big features that the Temple has to offer. Mr. Lamb can make his manikins do everything but talk and their dancing exercises are so lifelike as to be almost uncanny. George Rosner, one of vaudeville's favorite dramatic actors, will present his great character impersonations, while Sherman and Fuller are a rapid-fire team of comedy acrobats. The Mutual pictures, of course, will be another item on the bill of fare.

GEORGE ROSNER,
The well known vaudeville and dramatic star in character impersonations on the new star Keith bill at the Temple.

A Big Day Tuesday.

The Temple will have one big day of it Tuesday when the matinee goers will be presented with souvenir spoons and the evening patrons will be treated to that riotously funny spectacle, "The Lichtsinn & Peters Corner Grocery Store."

At the matinee each lady will be presented with a handsome silver teaspoon.

At the "Grocery store" in the evening twenty-five useful gifts will be distributed. Included in the list are two fifty-two piece dinner sets, complete in every respect. One of these sets now is on display in the lobby of the Temple and scarcely a woman can pass them without stopping to admire the exquisite coloring as well as the richness of the material.

The Stage by Norman

SOME OF BLANCHE RING'S CHORUS BEAUTIES.

New York, March 21.—Blanche Ring is having a lot of fun at the Lyric theater coaxing the audience to sing with her when she carols "Why is the Ocean So Near the Shore?"

When it comes to ringing the spectators in as adjuncts to the regular show Miss Ring has everybody backed off the boards, except Harry Lauder and the professional hynotists. She doesn't need an awful lot of outside assistance, at that, for "When Claudia Smiles" is one of the most amusing offerings New York has seen.

Wm. Faversham, deeply disappointed at New York's failure to patronize his Shakespearean productions, "Othello" and "Julius Caesar," has shot the chutes into vaudeville where he doesn't have to figure up his deficit on Saturday night but receives a small bit of paper good for $2,500 at any bank.

Faversham is appearing in "The Squaw Man," the real, original piece as Edwin Milton Royle wrote it for a Lamb's club gambol. From that skit Royle later evolved the four-act drama. Faversham gives a splendid performance, well supported by Elise Oldham.

Two more playwrights have learned the sad lesson that a good play is generally a success and a poor one a failure, even though the same man wrote both.

Augustin McHugh, author of the clever farce, "Officer 666," is also the author of "What Would You Do?" a hodge-podge of various "problem" themes. George Scarborough who wrote "The Lure," first of vice dramas, presents "The Last Resort," an attack on political corruption and crooked judges.

Both plays are reminiscent rather than timely and neither is faring well.

MILLER'S TEAM WON.

Gus Keyser's Men Not in It at Tug-of-War Game.

The roller skating party at the rink last night given by and for the members of the Electro-Technic club, was a most enjoyable event and aside from the pleasure of skating, there were some extra features that afforded a lot of fun. One was a tug of war contest between teams composed as follows: Guy Keyser, captain; A. E. Rogge, Fred Fleming, Al Wefel, A. Laird, Herman Gruber and Roy Knoll. Tony Miller, captain; E. N. Pence, Frank Anderson, Morris Knoll, Jack Riggs, Ed Romer and H. Dunbar. Miller's team won by a big margin and in honor of the victory the spectators presented Tony with a handsome medal. All of the men engaged in the contest had on roller skates and the pair worn by Mr. Miller were miniature automobiles, gotten out by a manufacturer as an unique advertisement. Another interesting stunt was the prize fight on roller skates of Jack Eyleburg, of the laboratory, and Nick Little, of the tool room. The gloves were mammoth affairs and the only marks left on the face of the fighter who was hit by one of them was a black spot. At the close of the three round contest the fighters looked like colored people. The gloves received a new coating of lampblack at the close of each round.

TONY MILLER.

LOST TWO FINGERS.

J. H. Banet, Pennsylvania Switchman, Victim of Accident.

J. H. Banet, yard brakeman and a member of the house engine crew in the old yards of the Pennsylvania, met with an accident which resulted in the amputation of the index and second finger of his right hand and bad laceration of the fourth finger. He was taken to the St. Joseph hospital, where he is reported as doing well this morning. The accident happened at 1:05 o'clock.

RETURNS TO THE SHOP.

E. R. Borden, who was engaged on special work in the motive power department of the Pennsylvania five months, completed that duty and yesterday resumed his former duties in the boiler shop. Theodore Titus, a special apprentice in the shop, has been temporarily transferred to the motive power department and assigned special work. This young man is a son of Engineer Charles H. Titus, of the Nickel Plate, and a grandson of Retired Engineer Theodore Titus.

REMARKABLE FREIGHT FEAT.

The Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul company announces that salmon taken from North Pacific waters on Tuesday are placed on sale in Chicago the following Friday. Of course, it is provided that the shipments are made over that line. The traffic in fish from the Pacific coast country to the east is growing rapidly and an occasional train load is carried through Fort Wayne, while single consignments are daily incidents.

TURNED OUT TWELVE ENGINES.

During the five days the Pennsylvania shops were in operation this week twelve engines were given general repairs and turned over to the operating department for service on the road. They were Nos. 7109, 7141, 7187, 7195, 7251, 7266, 7312, 7409, 7481, 9044, 9209 and 9903. The shops were not in operation today.

MACHINISTS PLAN A SOCIAL.

Friendship lodge, No. 70, International Association of Machinists, is planning a social dance for Friday, April 24, and at the next meeting the committee on arrangements will be selected and told to get busy. This dance, it is said, will be an invitation affair, designed only for the members of the union and the friends of the members.

INDUSTRIAL NOTES.

Harry Milhouse, a millwright at the Pennsylvania shops, is sick and off duty.

Don Isbell, of the testing room at the Fort Wayne Electric works, went to Kendallville this afternoon to spend Sunday with his parents.

Morse Steele, inspector of small motors at the Fort Wayne Electric works, is sick with neuralgia. The attack came several days ago.

W. E. Melching's absence from his office at the Fort Wayne Electric works this morning caused to be a mystery when it became known there that Mrs. Melching had presented her husband with a baby son.

Machinists Ben Singleton and Charles Kahoe, of Decatur, Ill., are in the city to spend Sunday with relatives and friends. They visited the Wabash shops, where they used to work, this morning and reported that the Fort Wayne colony at Decatur was doing well.

Fred J. Stahl, assistant erecting shop foreman of the Pennsylvania, has recovered a much prized watch which he supposed was lost. Last Saturday he dropped the ticker while at the round house and the "crippled yards" on the hill, but failed to find it. Today he had occasion to go there again and recalling the fact that he had crawled under an engine last Saturday to look at a broken frame, going there this morning he discovered the watch just where it had dropped from his pocket.

THE HUMAN SIDE OF A PRESIDENT

Can Hardly Refrain from Tipping Public Wink, Says Wilson.

TALKS TO PRESS CLUB

Washington, March 21.—Woodrow Wilson unbosomed himself to the members of the National Press club of Washington yesterday, telling them in a frank, conversational way how he felt as president of the United States, how difficult it was for him to maintain himself as the chief executive with formal amenities of the position, and how he had struggled to be as free as the ordinary individual without the restraints of his office.

It was an intimate picture of Woodrow Wilson the man drawn by himself, on the occasion of the "horse warning" at the press club's new quarters. The president did not intend to have his remarks reported, but later, at the request of the club, the informal speech was made public. It was as follows:

"I was just thinking of my sense of confusion of duality, sometimes, when I read articles about myself in which I recognized myself, and I have come to have the impression that I must be some kind of a fraud, because I think a great many of the references are written in absolutely good faith.

"I tremble to think of the variety and falseness of the impressions I make, and it is being borne in on me so that it may change my very disposition, that I am a cold and reserved person who has a thinking machine inside which operates to the exclusion of the emotions, which he does not allow to be moved by any waves of affection or emotion of any kind, but turns like a cold searchlight on anything that is presented to his attention and makes it work.

"I am not aware of having any detachable appearance inside of me. On the contrary, if I were to interpret myself, I would say that my outer embarrassment is to restrain the emotions that are inside of me. You may not believe it, but I sometimes feel like a fire from an extinct volcano, and if the lava does not seem to come out it is because you are not high enough to see into the basin and see the caldron boil.

"Because, I am gentlemen, in the position which I now occupy there is a sort of, I do not know how else to express it than to say, passionate sense of being connected with my fellowmen in a peculiar relationship of responsibility. Not merely the responsibility of office, but God knows there are enough things in this world that need to be corrected.

Thoughts Make Him Tremble.

"I have mixed, first and last, with all sorts and conditions of men; there are mighty few kinds of men that I have to be described to me, and there are mighty few kinds of experiences that have to be described to me and when I think of the number of men who are looking to me as the representative of a party with the hope for all varieties of salvation from the things they are struggling in the midst of, it makes me tremble.

"It makes me tremble not only with a sense of my own inadequacy and weakness, but as if I were shaken by the very things that are shaking them, and if I seem circumspect, it is because I am so diligently trying not to make any colossal blunders. If you just calculate the number of blunders a fellow can make in twenty-four hours, if he is not careful and if he does not listen more than he talks, you would see something of the feeling that I have.

Always Borrowing Brains.

"I was accused the other day at a remark that Senator Newlands made. I had read him the trust message that I was to deliver to congress some ten days before I delivered it, and I never stop doctoring things of that kind until the day I have to deliver them. When he heard it read to congress he said: 'I think it was better than it was when you read it to me.' I said, 'Senator, there is one thing which I do not thank you understand. I not only use all the brains I have, but all I can borrow, and I have borrowed a lot since I read it to you first.'

"That, I dare say, is what gives the impression of circumspectness. I am listening; I am diligently trying to collect all the brains that are borrowable in order that I may not make more blunders than I do inevitable that a man should make who has great limitations of knowledge and capacity. And the emotion of the thing is so great that I suppose I must put on some kind of a mask to conceal it.

Feels Like Regular Man.

"I really feel sometimes as if I were masquerading when I catch a picture of myself in some printed description. In between things that I have to do as a public officer I never think of myself as the president of the United States, because I never have had any sense of being identified with that office. I feel like a person appointed for a certain length of time to administer that office, and I feel just as much outside of it at this moment as I did before I was elected to it.

"I feel just as much outside of it as I still feel outside of the government of the United States. No man could imagine himself the government of the United States; but he could understand that some part of his fellow citizens had told him to go and run a certain part of it the best he knew how. That would not make him the government itself or the thing itself. It would just make him responsible for running it the best he knew how.

Wants to Wink at Public.

"The machine is so much greater than himself; the office is so much greater than he can ever be, and the most he can do is to look grave enough and self-possessed enought to seem to fill it. I can hardly refrain every now and again from tipping the public the wink, as much as to say, 'It is only 'me' that is inside this thing. I know perfectly well that I will have to get out presently. I know that then I will look just my own proper size, and that for the time being the proportions are somewhat refracted and misrepresented to the eye by the large thing I am inside of, from which I am tipping you this wink.'

A NERVOUS WRECK FROM ECZEMA

"I had eczema all over my body and was all run down and weak from loss of sleep. I was very nervous and was sometimes awake all night with the most horrible itching and I became almost a nervous wreck. I doctored several months without any improvement till I consulted Dr. Wells, of Fort Wayne, who cured me in less than five weeks. I want to recommend every one suffering with skin disease to Dr. Wells."

BENJAMIN SAWYER,
Bluffton, Ind.

Mr. Sawyer was in the hands of splendid physicians, but they failed to cure him because they, like most other practicing physicians, have paid so little attention to skin diseases, that they are not versed in the various treatments for this trouble. I have given the subject special study because I know the great number of sufferers who fail to get cured by the family physician. There are many such cases as the above. I cure them when the other doctor fails.

FIRST CLASS IN POLITENESS, STAND UP!--"TAKE MY SEAT, MA'AM"--"THANK YOU, SIR!" SAYS SHE

BEFORE AFTER

Minneapolis, Minn., March 1.—Little boys and girls in the third grade of the Logan school are reveling these days in a new game devised for them by their teacher, Miss Edith Hookey.

It is called the "street car game" and is part of a course in good manners.

Six little boys arrange six chairs to form an imitation street car. Then with hats on their heads and newspapers under their arms they enter and take seats. With the greatest gravity they unfold their newspapers and proceed to bury themselves behind them in true man style. At a signal from the teacher the little girls troop in one by one with a grown-up twitch of their skirts and grasp imaginary straps. They do not grasp them long, however, for each little boy, glancing up at a little lady beside him, rises, politely lifts his cap, and says: "Take my seat, madam." The little lady smiles sweetly and sits down with a "Thank you, sir."

The children think the game the greatest fun in their day.

VIEW OF EAST END OF STATION SHOWING HARRISON STREET ENTRANCE TO CONCOURSE AND TRAIN SHEDS

For a score of years Allen county has enjoyed the distinction of having the most costly, best arranged and prettiest court house in the state of Indiana and also a much better one than many of the other counties in her class in the way of population in the middle west. As this magnificent building is located in Fort Wayne, the city takes an equal pride in the court house. She can now lay claim to a similar distinction in the way of a railway passenger station. No other depot in Indiana will compare favorably in elegance of appearance, appointments and facilities for handling business with the Pennsylvania passenger station on Baker street, just completed and opened to business. And but few cities with twice the population of Fort Wayne have as good. The beauty and massive proportions of this magnificent passenger station can not be comprehended thoroughly by reading a newspaper article, and only a personal inspection will give a correct idea of its magnitude and grandeur. Thousands of our people have been waiting anxiously for its completion in order that they might have opportunity to walk through the various rooms, corridors, subways and train boulevards, and now that the work is practically finished, they will make haste to inspect it.

Cost and Construction Items.

The Pennsylvania officials are not giving to the public the exact cost of the new station, for included in the vast sums expended in Fort Wayne during the past two years are improvements not directly connected with the depot. It is safe to state, however, that the passenger station proper cost between $350,000 and $400,000. This figure does not embrace the amount paid for the site, which in itself cost in the vicinity of $200,000, nor the track elevation, street subways and other improvements which would have been made were no new depot erected. This brings, it is figured, the grand total expended on the improvements in the vicinity of Harrison and Webster street to a point above the $700,000 mark.

An idea of the immense amount of material that went into the construction of the building and its appurtenances can be obtained from the following paragraphs, the data for which was furnished by L. P. Struble, from Chief Engineer Robert Trimble's office, at Pittsburg, who was on the ground during the entire time of construction, looking after the interests of the railway company:

Over 750,000 brick went into the outer walls and the partitions. If these were piled one upon the other, making a spire one foot square, it would be fifteen miles high.

The electric fixtures are of solid brass and their total weight is upwards of 60,000 pounds. This weight is probably equal to the weight of a winter's supply of fuel for a small family.

But little timber or iron was used in the construction of the building, which is constructed almost exclusively of brick, concrete, terra cotta and marble and is absolutely fireproof.

The total floor area in the building and concourse is approximately four-fifths of an acre. The station site, or lot, is about one and seven-tenths acres, made up as follows: Sation building, 29 per cent.; express building, 4 per cent.; driveways, 25 per cent.; sidewalks, 10 per cent., and grass plots, 32 per cent.

The total amount of watts used per hour when all the lights are in operation is 24,300. At the city rate of 8 cents per kilowatt, it would cost the company $2 per hour to light the station, providing all the lamps were operated.

The copper wire used in the construction of the electric lighting system, the telegraph and telephone systems and for other purposes, would cover a distance of twenty-five miles were it stretched in one continuous line.

The telegraphic facilities are superb. They include direct connection through the Western Union system with a circuit covering an area of approximately 120,000 square miles.

Dimensions of Building.

The main building, which in shape resembles a Greek cross, has a frontage on Baker street of 183 feet, divided as follows: Central or dome part, 63 feet; east and west wings, which are set back from the street line of the central part 20 feet, 60 feet each. The central part has a depth of 86 feet and each of the wings a depth of 55 feet. The wings and a part of the central portion have a second floor, but the central part of the main structure ends in a most beautifully designed and glazed dome, 45 feet above the floor level. There is a basement under the entire building, which houses the culinary department in the east end, a storage room; the middle portion the ice-making or refrigerating plant; the west end the boiler for heating purposes; electrical apparatus and machinery, including a switchboard, a transformer, the motors for operating the two baggage and express elevators and the automatic enunciator. There is also a small coal bin for storing the fuel used in the kitchen ranges and a subway, leading to the main coal bin under the northernmost track, through which the fuel for the heating plant is conveyed on carts especially designed for that purpose.

Main Waiting Room.

The main waiting room is 90 feet deep and 40 feet wide and is entered directly through the doors on Baker street or by means of the concourse leading west from Harrison street. It is probably the most elaborately decorated of any of the departments, though the general style of finish, color and trimmings found in it have been carried out in the finish of some of the other departments. The floors throughout the entire first floor are of terrazzo construction, with a marble border. The walls to the height of 15 or 18 feet are constructed of a light buff brick, ending at a terra cotta cornice. Above this is decorative plaster (paris) work of brown, purple and red colors. The color effect is perfect and most pleasing to the eye. At the rear of the waiting room are massive doors of beautiful design opening into the enclosed concourse.

Elegantly Equipped.

The seating capacity of the big waiting room is about 180. Eight oak settees, with accommodations on each side for ten people, have been placed in the room in a manner to give the occupants a good view of the entrances and to give them the full benefit of the lights and heating apparatus. There are ten radiators in the room, and in addition to these there are several recesses in the walls for the transmission of heat. These recesses are covered with brass grillwork, which is very pretty and adds to the pleasing effect of the decorative properties of the room.

Sanitary Drinking Fountains.

On the west side of the waiting room, about the center and near the wall, are two sanitary drinking fountains. Each is provided with a bubbling fountain and faucet, the latter for the accommodation of those who are provided with individual drinking cups. No public drinking cups are allowed about the fountains, however, and this rule will be strictly observed.

The Ticket Office.

The first openings in the wall of the waiting room west of the main entrance are the four windows of the ticket office. In front of these, as shown in the illustration are polished barred railings so arranged as to prevent crowding in times of a rush. The ticket room is provided with all new and latest furniture and ticket cases and they are located with a view to bringing the tickets within easy reach of the seller. The illustration on this page shows the location of these ticket cases, the cash drawer, the telephone and other appurtenances necessary to a well arranged ticket office. The shelving and counters are of marble and in every way possible wood is eliminated from the make-up wherever there is liability to dust and dirt accumulations.

Agent's Private Office.

Back of the ticket office a corridor leading past the door of the mammoth safe into a cosy little room which will serve as the ticket agent's private room. This room is equipped with comfortable settee, cabinet and tables, easy and ordinary chairs and a typewriter table. It is also provided with numerous receptacles for papers, records, etc., and has a lavatory and toilet room.

Telegraph and Telephone Room.

The corridor which affords a back entrance to the agent's private office also leads to several other rooms. One is the home of the telegraph and telephone department, in which is also located the automatic enunciator. A part of this room, together with the enunciator and the caller announcing the time of departure of trains, is shown in one of the illustrations on this page and it gives to the reader a more clearer idea of the equipment than can be obtained through a word description.

The Stationmaster's Quarters.

West of the telegraph and telephone office is the stationmaster's room, reached from the other rooms through the corridor. It is equipped with all the necessary tables, file cabinets, chairs and other paraphernalia. It is also equipped with both private and city connected telephones, making it possible for the stationmaster to readily communicate with the officials in the superintendent's building, the operators in the signal station and with all stations along the line of railway and with the city exchange.

Mail Transfer Room.

On the opposite side of the corridor at the baggagemaster's room is a large, well lighted room for use by the mail transfer force. This is equipped with tables, pidgeonhole racks and [illegible] tenances of a mail distributing and sorting establishment. There are four men employed at this work, two on the day trick and two on the night trick.

Baggagemaster's Room.

The corridor giving access to the rooms mentioned in the foregoing lines ends in the baggage room. This is a large, square, well-lighted room, with ample doors for taking in and out the hundreds of pieces of baggage handled there every day. There are numerous shelves and a commodious counter or table upon which to transact the business of the department. Floor scales that will weigh articles from a half pound to several tons have been placed near the door. The window at which passengers will check the smaller pieces of baggage has a low, broad sill, so that it may not require undue exertion to lift the pieces upon it.

Parcel Check Room.

In the west wall of the main waiting room, south of the sanitary drinking fountains described in the foregoing lines, are two low-silled windows connecting with the parcel check room. These openings have been made low to prevent the necessity of much effort for the passenger to deposit the grip, valise or other package to be checked.

Union News Stand.

At the left of the Baker street entrance is the Union news stand, which has already been occupied. There all the leading newspapers, periodicals and many books are attractively displayed, as is also the stock of cigars, tobacco, candy and other articles usually found in such places.

Men's Smoking Room.

The second opening is the smoking room, in which is located a shoeshining outfit, toilet and lavatory and a counter supporting a case containing cigars which is attended from within the news stand. A heavy and prettily designed oak screen located just within the room in the wide entrance obscures the view from the waiting room, but does not in the least interfere with free egress or exit of the smoking room.

Dining and Lunch Rooms.

The third opening in the east wall of the waiting room is a corridor leading to the dining room and lunch room. Here marble predominates in the trimmings. The cashier's desk is marble, the same material covers the tables and the lunch counter, and where exposed metal connections are necessary, polished brass is used. The dining room will seat about forty and the lunch counter will accommodate a much greater number. The radiators in the dining room are flat and hug the wall closely, taking up but very little space. Between the two rooms is the serving room, so arranged as to be accessible to both, and in it is a dumb waiter which plies between the kitchen and the dining departments. It is provided with all the accessories of a first-class waiter and is sanitary and compact.

The Kitchen.

In the basement, beneath the dining room and lunch room, is a kitchen which cooks declare to be the acme of perfection in culinary establishments. This model cooking place is small, being 30x40 feet in dimensions, but its efficiency has been advanced to a point almost inconceivable for its floor space, by the judicious arrangement of the stoves, tables and lockers. Steam tables are there to keep the edibles warm in anticipation of a rush, and in this way it is possible to prepare in advance a lot of victuals, while the ranges are used for cooking more. Landlord Carpenter believes in home baking and the patrons at his tables and lunch room will not be served with the "store" bakery products. The refrigerator room adjoins the kitchen and the storage room is located between the cafe manager's little office in the northeast corner of the basement and the kitchen. The refrigerator room is equipped with a No. 6 Audiffren-Singrun ice-making machine, built at the Fort Wayne Electric works, and a large refrigerator built at the McCray works in Kendallville. The ice machine has connection with tanks for bubbling drinking water, which is forced through pipes to the two fountains in the waiting rooms and the other places where water is needed for that purpose. An instantaneous heater, located in the boiler room, warms the water for the lavatories on the ground floor.

Women's Retiring Room.

One of the most cosy and elegantly furnished rooms in the building is the room devoted exclusively to women. It is just south of the corridor leading to the dining rooms, has a wide arch entrance, protected by an oak panel screen similar in pattern to that at the entrance of the smoking room. The furnishings in this room are upholstered rocking chairs, easy chairs, a broad and comfortable leather upholstered couch, writing desk and at the rear is the toilet room. Here a travel-worn, tired or sick woman can find rest and quietude. The illustration gives a pretty good idea of the appearance of this room.

Information Office.

The information bureau and taxicab office is just south of the ladies' retiring room. It is simply a large hole in the wall, with a broad counter three feet from the floor. There will be a supply of folders in stock and some civil, intelligent person to answer, if possible, all questions concerning train time on all the Fort Wayne steam and electric roads and give such other information as may be desired. At the old depot the ticket salesmen were the information bureau. They willingly surrender that title and duty.

Assembly Room.

The east half on the second story is divided into two rooms. The larger is called the assembly room and will be used for holding large gatherings, which in the past were held in the Y. M. C. A. auditorium. The other and smaller room is called the "committee room." In it meetings that cannot be handled in the offices of the officials will be held. This room is about 26x35 feet.

Ticket Receiver's Room.

The western part of the second floor is devoted to the trainmen and the ticket receivers. The ticket receiver's office is near the head of the stairs. The door opens into a passageway, on one side of which is a counter with a grill top, with windows through which the conductors will pass the cash they have collected, the tickets taken up on the run just completed and such other reports as may be necessary. Back of this grilled hall is a commodious room with desks, comfortable chairs and a large vault in which to keep valuable papers and the cash.

Trainmen's Room.

This room is directly opposite the ticket receiver's room and it is provided with all the necessary furniture—tables and chairs—and is conveniently near the lavatory and toilet room. At the end of the hall is a door which opens into the trainmen's locker rooms. There are 200 of these lockers, each constructed of steel and provided with burglar-proof locks.

The Concourse.

An enclosed concourse connects the main building with the subway leading to the track stairs. This concourse is heated and electrically lighted and is just as comfortable in any kind of weather as other parts of the station. Entrance is made from without by doors on the east side and there is a covered but open-sided extension, twenty-two feet wide, to Harrison street, to give protection from rain or snow to passengers entering or leaving the station who do not wish to pass through the main waiting room. There are benches and chairs in the enclosed portion of the concourse.

Passenger Subway and Stairs.

Four very easily ascended stairs lead from the subway to "island" passenger platforms above—two for each end. These island platforms are so called because it is impossible to pass from one to the other without going down into the subway and coming up again at another stairway. The passenger subway is ten feet high and twenty feet wide and is well lighted and ventilated.

Passenger Platforms.

There are two passenger platforms and two train sheds and each serves two tracks, making it possible to handle four trains at one time. The platforms are 800 feet long each and the train sheds are 400 feet long each. At each end of these train sheds is a small waiting room, 8x40 feet, equipped with steam heat radiators, comfortable seats and electric lights. The accompanying illustration will convey a good idea of the track and train shed arrangement.

Baggage Elevators.

At the west end of each passenger platform is an electrically driven elevator for handling baggage, express and mail matter.

The Lighting System.

No building in the state has better lighting facilities than this magnificent structure and its annexes, yards and subways. The indirect lighting system is employed in the building and around the walls of the main waiting room, just below the terra cotta cornice, the dozens of lamps invisible from the floor, which cast their rays against reflectors that temper them but does not reduce their efficiency in lighting the room. The effect is most pleasing to the eye. The platforms, parks and sidewalks are lighted by ornamental post lamps and a look at some of the illustrations will show how they are arranged. In front of the main entrance to the depot are two five-light ornamental posts located at the edge of the walk and about twenty-five feet apart. The greater portion of the other outdoor lights are single lamp ornamental affairs, placed upon posts of attractive design. There are dozens of these on the passenger track platforms and at night, when the current is turned on, the effect is grand, viewed from both an ornamental and efficiency standpoint. The men who had charge of the installation of this lighting plant are proud of their work and their pride is justifiable, for there is nothing in the country that eclipses it and but very few plants that equal it.

Train Announcing System.

Another feature of the equipment of the station of which the management has taken great interest and in which the people of Fort Wayne will also be interested, for few of them have ever had opportunity to examine it, is the automatic enunciator system for announcing the time of departure of trains from the station. This system consists of the enunciator, or transmitter, located in the telegraph office in the main building, connected by wire with twenty-three resonators located with a view of reproducing in distinct manner the voice of the man at the enunciator in as many different parts of the depot. A test has demonstrated that persons of ordinary hearing cannot fail to hear and understand the call, no matter in what part of the station—waiting room, restaurant, smoking room, ladies' private room, subways, platform waiting rooms or concourse—they may be. An illustration of the manner of making the train time announcements will be found in the group of pictures on this page.

To Have Three Clocks.

In addition to the small clocks in the ticket office, the stationmaster's and the telegraph and telephone office, there will be two ornamental cased mammoth clocks in the waiting room, one at each end, and one in the dining room. These have not arrived from the manufacturer and may not be installed for a week or two.

The Fire Protection System.

Fire protection has not been overlooked in designing the station. A four-teen inch pipe connecting the pumping station at the St. Mary's river with the tanks at the round house and elsewhere passes the station and this has been tapped and a large service pipe leading into the building installed and all the water except that used in cooking and for drinking purposes is derived from this source. On each floor are two three-inch fire plugs with fifty feet of fire hose attached, ready for immediate use. All the best apparatus for handling the hose has also been installed and a test has demonstrated the fact that the pressure is sufficient for any emergency.

The Cleaning System.

A vacuum cleaning system has been installed. There are four sets and in the hands of men who have learned how to manage them, they are most perfect in their operations. The dirt is drawn in by the suction and conveyed to a bin in the basement and the cleaners can be operated at any time in the waiting rooms, for no dust arises to annoy those in the vicinity.

Occupants of the Station.

The occupants of the building are only those directly connected with the passenger business and handling of passenger trains and the United States mail. The list is as follows:

Ticket office—John E. Ross, Howard H. Pierce, Jacob B. Hooley and Harry L. Enslen.

Stationmaster and assistants—C. E. Brownsberger, W. H. Hayes and James K. Lower.

Ticket receivers—J. C. M. Baker, George W. Sellers, J. H. Lempers and Ralph Cook.

Matron—Miss Mary McNearney.

Restaurant and dining department—James W. Carpenter, manager; the waiters and cooks.

Baggage department—Frank J. Kanaga, Ed Schmidt, Frank Connor, Harry Dunlap, Lee Osborne and Fred Nimor.

Union News stand—Charles Cornell, Morton Moss and Herald Krause.

Mail transfer—A. Krauss, Otis Braboy, Denver Bowman and A. Knite.

Telegraph operators—F. J. Kennelly, L. R. Young and W. J. McGary.

Mechanical superintendent—William N. Hosterman.

Passenger car inspectors—John Koehl, A. Koehlein, A. W. Wuttky, W. Mlynasky, F. Hak, H. E. Ryan, E. Bennett and C. H. Hampel.

The Men Who Built Station.

The buildings subways and concourse were designed by Price & McLanahan, of Philadelphia, who have a national reputation as architects. They have designed many other large public buildings, included being the Allegheny passenger station of the Pennsylvania company, which is very similar to the one in Fort Wayne.

George B. Swift & Company, of Chicago, were the contractors and they were represented on the grounds by W. B. Ogden, who was here over a year in that capacity. These architects and Superintendent Ogden have built many fine buildings in the country and are known in railway and business and industrial circles as very successful contractors.

Robert Trimble, the chief engineer of the Pennsylvania, had charge of the company's end of the work. He was assisted by L. P. Struble and D. M. McFerron, of Pittsburg, who were constantly on the ground. The local end of the work was under the supervision of Division Engineer Guy Scott, who placed Assistant Engineer Harvey Hall in charge and the latter, with J. W. Jenkins and John W. Birtwhistle, assistants and foremen, were constantly on the ground during the construction work.

Express Building.

West of the passenger station has been erected a one-story 40-60 foot building for use by the Adams Express company. It is built of the same material as the depot and the same style of architecture and trimmings was followed.

The Train Signal System.

An improvement connected with the station, but which was made by the maintenance of way department of the Pennsylvania and not connected in any way with the contract work, is the installation of the "G. C." signal tower on the south line of the right-of-way and opposite the passenger train sheds. The man on duty in this tower controls the movements of every passenger, freight and switch engine and every train between Winter street and the Grand Rapids and Indiana junction, west of the city. He has control of twelve tenders and is in direct communication by telegraph or telephone with Stationmaster Brownsburger, the trainmaster and the division operator, as well as with all the switch tenders. The operators in this tower are J. J. Ladig, first trick; W. G. Lowman, second trick; C. F. Quinn, third trick, and they work eight hours each. This tower was placed where two of the old main tracks had been and the picture shows the break in the line. These stub end tracks are being removed now, but will be replaced when the ground has been raised to the proper level and will be used for passenger car yards. The latter are now located east of Hanna street and are too remote for efficient service since the station yards have been moved several hundred yards westward.

Matron Thirty-Two Years.

This story would be incomplete without a word about one of the old employes, in point of years, at the Pennsylvania depot. Miss Mary McNearney is such a familiar personage at the depot that many of the passengers who enter therein and fail to see her receive the impression that they have entered the wrong door. If Miss McNearney is out longer than usual, wonderment in the mind of the observing passenger gives place to anxiety and the query is made, "Where is Mary? I hope she is not sick." At least the persons who have passed in and out of the station many times make such inquiry, for they love the kind-hearted, samaritan-like matron and possibly have occasion for feelings of gratitude.

For nearly thirty-two years Miss McNearney has presided as matron at the Pennsylvania depot. During that period thousands of men, women and children have in some manner been the beneficiaries of her kindly administrations, prompted by a tender and sympathetic heart and a desire to faithfully perform the duties reposed in her by her employers. Many times has Mary seated a careworn mother with the remark, "Now, just rest yourself a while," and taking the fretful child in her arms, walked the floor or otherwise entertained it while the poor mother gratefully sought the respite so badly needed. And many a sick woman or man has found the forced stay at the station less painful or tiresome because of the kindly offices of the matron than it would have been had she not been there.

Prior to her work as matron at the Pennsylvania depot, Miss McNearney was employed in the depot hotel sixteen years with Capt. Henry McKinnie, making a total of forty-eight years she has been employed there. She is a native of Ireland and the eldest child in a family of five. Her parents came to America when she was a small babe. The family resided in the vicinity of Cleveland until Mary was eight years old, when they moved to Fort Wayne. For several years the family lived in a small house in the rear of the Maurice Cody residence, on Barr and Water (now Superior) street. For a number of years Mr. McNearney worked for Cheaney & Fleming, the owners of the gas works, and when he died the widow bought a lot on Calhoun street, now occupied by the Somers building. She sold the place a few years later, however, and purchased ground and erected a home at the corner of Baker and McClellan streets, where Miss McNearney still desides. While hale and hearty, she will soon be retired under the rule that fixes the age limit of active employes at three score and ten.

SAMUEL HANNA.

Judge Hanna belonged to the higher type of the pioneer class of men. He was a planter and builder, more than a legislator. He had the hope, the courage, the forethought, the fertility of resource, the unfaltering purpose and will that characterize planters of colonies and founders of cities. He was more than a statesman, for he had in him the elements and powers of the men who build cities and found states."—From an address by Joseph K. Edgerton on the day following the death of Judge Hanna, June 11, 1866.

TWELFTH INSTALLMENT

SYNOPSIS OF LAST SATURDAY'S INSTALLMENT.

Opening with the story of the suffering and defeat of the left wing of General Harrison's army under command of General Winchester, and of the final events of the war of 1812, attention returns to the little garrison at Fort Wayne which forms the protection for the settlers who begin actively the work of establishing a place of residence and trade. Maj. Joseph Jenkinson, first commandant after the war, was succeded by Major John Whistler, who was in command at the time of the opening of today's installment. Among the first permanent settlers to arrive were Colonel and Mrs. William Suttenfield and Louis Bourie and family.

Jenkinson, Whistler and Vose—The Dawn of Peace.

1813-1818.

Fourth of July in the Fort.

1814 (Continued.)—A pleasing word-picture of the observance of the Fourth of July at the fort in the year 1814 comes down to the present days through the words of Mrs. Suttenfield, who, in 1862, wrote a sketch of the situation of those who made their home within the palisades. "The fort at that time contained sixty men of the regular army, all patriotic and anxious to celebrate one day in the year," says Mrs. Suttenfield. "They made three green bowers, 100 feet from the pickets of the fort, where Main street now is—one bower for the dinner table, one for the cooks and one for the music. Major Whistler had two German cooks and they prepared the dinner. There were but eleven persons at the table; but three are now living [1869] to tell of that day. Our dinner consisted of one fine turkey, a side of venison, boiled ham, vegetables in abundance, cranberries and green currants. As for dessert, we had none. Eggs were not known here for three years from that time. There were three bottles of wine sent here from Cincinnati; but one was made use of. Then there were a few toasts, and, after three guns and music, they went into the fort and the ladies changed their dresses. Then Major Whistler called for the music, which consisted of one bass drum, two small ones, one fife, violin and flute. There was a long gallery in the fort; the musicians took their seats there. But three of the gentlemen could dance. There were but three ladies present. A French four passed off very well for an hour. Then the gates of the fort were closed at sundown, which gave it a gloomy appearance. No children, no younger persons for amusement, all retired to their rooms. All was quiet and still. The sentinel on his lonely round would give us the hour of the night. In the morning we were aroused by the beating of the reveille."[158] . . .

The First House in Fort Wayne.

Colonel Suttenfield, although he lived within the stockaded post for a period, was the first to erect a log house at Fort Wayne after the siege. It stood near the corner of the present Columbia and Barr streets. This building, relocated and made a part of Washington hall in later years was destroyed by fire in 1858. . . .

The Residents of the Fort.

Lieutenant Curtis, whose name appears among those who were the most active in the fort during the siege, was still connected with the post. The residents of the fort, in addition to the troops, included Major Benjamin F. Stickney, the Indian agent, whose good services during the siege have been noted; Benjamin Berry Kercheval and Peter Oliver (the latter of whom was beside Stephen Johnston when he was killed by the savages in 1812), clerks of the agent; Batiste Maloch, a trader, with his wife and granddaughter, Angeline Chapeteau; Louis Bourie and family; James and Charles Peltier, traders; John P. Hedges, who had first visited the fort in 1812 as a clerk in the commissary department of Harrison's army, and was now stationed at the fort as a storekeeper; Dr. Daniel Smith, who had removed from Lancaster, Ohio; Robert Forsythe, who later became a paymaster in the United States army; George Hunt, a sutler; John E. Hunt, then a clerk for his brother, George. The salary of Major Stickney at this time was $750 per year. . . .

The Marriage of James Peltier and Angeline Chapeteau.

One of the noted affairs of the year, and one which has left its lasting impress upon the history of Fort Wayne, was the marriage of James Peltier and Angeline Chapeteau. A son of this union was the late Louis Peltier, born in the fort in 1815, who became the father of the late James C. Peltier. Will H. W. Peltier, the present owner of the undertaking establishment of Peltier & Son, is a son of James C. Peltier. Mrs. James Peltier (Angeline Chapeteau), after the death of her husband at the age of about 80 years, married a Mr. Griswold; in 1786 her death occurred at Fort Wayne. (See 1807.)

Whistler Rebuilds the Fort.

'315.—Since the completion of the fort by Wayne's men in 1794—twenty-one years before—none but minor repairs had been made to the buildings or stockade composing the fort, and the blockhouses and other structures were sadly in need of reconstruction. Consequently, Major Whistler, with the sanction of the government, rebuilt a large part of the structure, and in so doing made several notable changes in its form. Logs from the surrounding forest were brought to the site by the soldiers, and about the buildings a stockade was made of pickets "twelve and one-half feet long, put in in sets of six, with a crosspiece, two feet from the top, let in and spiked. A trench two and one-half feet deep was dug to let them in, which made them stand ten feet high."[164] . . .

Charles Peltier Killed by Wolves.

Mrs. Ferry, of Decatur whose memory of the residents of the settlement subsequent to the year 1818 is very clear, gives an account of the tragic death of Charles Peltier. "A year after Angeline Chapeteau came," says Mrs. Ferry, "two younger sisters arrived from Detroit. One of these became the wife of Charles Peltier. Another sister, Theresa, became the wife of Francis Minie, Ilet. brother, George, also settled at Fort Wayne. One day, when Charles Peltier was riding in the woods, he was attacked by wolves. His horse ran away and he could not save himself. His skeleton was discovered later. Nothing but his snuff box was left for identification." . . .

Richardville, America's Wealthiest Indian.

Jean Baptiste Richardvillet Pe-che-wa), who, in 1812, because of an act of extreme daring, had been made civil chief of the Miamis, was granted a license to trade at Fort Wayne. Assisted by his mother, Tau-cum-wah, a sister of Little Turtle, Richardville had secured a near-monopoly of the portage business between the St. Mary's and the Wabash rivers, and was at the time of his death, in 1841, counted as the richest Indian in America. His wealth was estimated at $200,000.[165] His iron safe, the first ever seen in the region, is still a treasured relic in the city of Fort Wayne. The chief established a place of business on the present Columbia street, and also on his reserve on the Wabash river, southwest of Fort Wayne. . . .

A census taken under the direction of the legislature of the territory showed that there was not a single house north of Fort Wayne, and none between the fort and Chicago (Fort Dearborn.) . . .

Major Vose a Religious Commandant.

1816.—The western movement of the settlers brought about the transfer of Major Whistler to the post of St. Louis, in 1816, and the government assigned to Fort Wayne Major Josiah N. Vose, of the Fifth United States infantry, who was destined to be the final commandant of the celebrated fort at the head of the Maumee. A notable characteristic of Major Vose was his strict adherence to Christian living and his conduct of religious services for his officers and men. Concerning this feature of his character, Colonel John Johnston, who knew him well, said in a letter written in 1859 that Major Vose was the only commandant of the fort who publicly professed Christianity. It was his constant practice "to assemble his men on the Sabbath day and read the Scriptures to them and talk with them in a conversational way about religion. The conduct of such a man," added Colonel Johnston, "can only be appreciated by persons familiar with the allurements and temptations of military life."[166] . . .

The Words of a Prophet.

In the year 1816 appeared the book by Captain Robert McAfee, of Kentucky, the "History of the Late War in the Western Country," in which the author declared that "a canal, at some future day will unite these rivers [the Maumee and the Wabash] and thus render a town at Fort Wayne as formerly the most considerable place in all that country." In this prophetic utterance, the writer saw for the white man an ideal place of settlement and trade for the same reason that it had always been a great Indian stronghold, namely, its ideal situation on a great natural waterway route. George Washington was probably the first to foresee the possibilities of a great connecting canal; the Friends who visited the place in 1804 made a record of their belief that a canal could be constructed at a reasonable cost. . . . A new resident of the fort in 1816 was Dr. Trevitt, who came from Ohio. . . .

A Canal-Boosting Governor.

Jonathan Jennings was elected governor of the new state of Indiana, which had been admitted to the union on April 29 of this year; he was the advocate of canals and a widespread system of internal improvements. The total number of votes cast in the state was 9,145. The first general assembly met at the state capital, Corydon, in November. . . .

A New Council House.

1817. Since the burning of the first council house at Fort Wayne during the siege of 1812, there had been no suitable place for the transaction of the annuity and other business with the Indians, and Major Vose, during his incumbency, erected a new log building, two stories in height, to meet the need. It was located on a site on the present East Main street later occupied by the home of Michael Hedekin, adjoining No. 1 fire engine house. . . . The Fort Wayne garrison in 1817 consisted of fifty-six men. To Colonel and Mrs. Suttenfield, on November 29, came a daughter, Jane. In later years this daughter became the wife of Myron F. Barbour, who was one of the earliest school teachers of Fort Wayne and later prominent in business circles. . . . The year noted the passing of Louis Bourie, one of the earliest of the pioneers; his extensive business affairs came under the management of his brother, John Bourie.

CHAPTER XIX.

The Town Builder Succeeds the Soldier.

1818-1822.

A Period of Advancement.

1818. With the opening of the year 1818, none could have peered into the future and foreseen the transformation which the next five years were to bring—the departure of the troops, the arrival of pioneers of brain and daring, the organization of county and town government, the platting of a town which would grow into a modern city, and the beginning of schools and vast business enterprises. . . .

Canal Boosters.

In his first message to the legislature, Governor Jennings urged a prompt consideration of the establishment of canals, and especially the proposed connection between the Maumee and the Wabash rivers. Benjamin F. Stickney, the Indian agent at Fort Wayne, through a letter to DeWitt Clinton, giving convincing facts with reference to the proposed waterway, brought an enthusiastic response from Clinton considered as the "father" of the Erie canal who said: "I have found a way to get into Lake Erie [by the construction of a canal between the Hudson river and Lake Erie], and you have shown me how to get out of it. . . . You have extended my project six hundred miles."[167] Let not the people of Indiana underestimate the good work of Major Stickney, which is still further placed in evidence in his letter to the Western Emigrant society, in which he describes the conditions with clearness, and adds that "it will be but a matter of small expense of labor to connect these two rivers together by a canal that would be passable at the lowest water." . . .

Important Treaties.

Great throngs of the Indians, many of whom had sunk to a low degree of degradation because of the liquor furnished to them by unprincipled whites, gathered about the fort seeking food and clothing while awaiting the period of the annual consignment of money to be paid them for their lands. During the year treaties with the Miamis held at St. Mary's, Ohio, represented by Governor Jennings, Governor Cass and Benjamin Park, United States commissioners, gave to the United States much valuable ground about Fort Wayne. Among those to whom parcels of ground were reserved for residence purposes or because of the nation's recognition of their services, were the following: Chief Jean Baptiste Richardville, Joseph Richardville, Joseph Richardville, jr., Francis LaFontaine, the son of George Hunt; Little Turtle (Mishe-no-quah),[168] Josette Beaubien, Eliza C. Kercheval (daughter of Benjamin B. Kercheval), James Knaggs, John B. Bourie, Joseph Parke Ann and Jack Hackley, the children of Maria Christiana DeRome and LaGro. . . .

James Barnett, the Pioneer.

A hardy pioneer, James Barnett, one of the builders of the foundation of Fort Wayne, came to the little settlement and decided to cast his lot among the few who were establishing themselves about the fort. He had visited the place in 1797, as a trader, and, later, in 1812, came as the captain of a company serving under General Harrison. His activity and enterprise were soon to incite that degree of confidence which was necessary to the upbuilding of a town in the wilderness.

The Troops Abandon Fort Wayne.

1819.—Three important events marked the developments of the year—the departure of the troops from the fort, the government survey of the military tract, and the arrival of Samuel Hanna, who was counted by his contemporaries, as he is regarded today, as Fort Wayne's foremost citizen. . . . The work of the soldiers was no longer needed at Fort Wayne. At the close of their service, the garrison consisted of Major J. N. Vose, one post surgeon, two captains, one first lieutenant, five sergeants, four corporals, four musicians (two fifers, one snare drummer and one bass drummer), and seventy-four artillerymen and privates—ninety-six men in all. The order for the evacuation caused no little excitement in the settlement, and when the day of the departure came, the few settlers who comprised the village felt a loneliness which was overcome only through the performance of the duties which came upon them as pioneers and founders of an enlightened community. The fort buildings, vacated by the military, now came under the control of the civil authorities, represented by the Indian agent, Major Stickney, who leased the former quarters of the soldiers to such families and individuals as desired them. Even at this period, the shelter of the stockade brought a feeling of security, and the fort was not without its convenient firearms and supply of ammunition. The provision of these comfortable living quarters served also to attract many travelers, some of whom remained to stamp their names and characters upon the history of the village and the town. . . .

Samuel Hanna.

Among those sturdy, intelligent men who found their way to the settlement and remained as a builder of a city and of his own fortune was Samuel Hanna, pioneer merchant, judge, legislator, canal builder, railroad builder, banker and foremost leader in all branches of public enterprise, while he succeeded in becoming one of the wealthiest men of his time in the middle west. Born in Scott county Ky., in October, 1797, and later removing with his parents to Dayton, Ohio, he came to Fort Wayne from St. Mary's, Ohio, where he had been engaged in supplying goods during the Indian treaties of the preceding year. He was 22 years of age. He erected at once a log building on the site which later became the northwest corner of Barr and Columbia streets, where now stands the oldest brick building in Fort Wayne—erected also by Samuel Hanna at a later period. Here, having formed a partnership with James Barnett, he opened a trading post. Much of the goods which came from the east were purchased from Abbott Lawrence, at Boston; the shipments were made by water to New York, thence up the Hudson river and across to Buffalo, and from there to Fort Wayne by way of Lake Erie and the Maumee. . . .

Fort Wayne in 1819.

The village of the period is well described in a letter written by Captain James Riley, who was sent by the national government to survey the military tract. "The fort is now only a small stockade," said he. "No troops are stationed here, and less than thirty dwelling houses, occupied by French and American families, form the settlement. The departure of the fort soldiers has left the little band of residents here extremely lonely. But as soon as the land has been surveyed and offered for sale, I have no doubt but that inhabitants will pour in from all quarters to this future thoroughfare between the east and the Mississippi river." . . .

A Prophecy.

Again, in a letter to Edward Tiffin, surveyor general, Captain Riley said: "The country around is very fertile. The situation is commanding and healthy, and here will arise a town of great importance, which must become a depot of great trade. . . . This is a central point, combining more natural advantages to build up and support a town of importance than I have seen in the western country." Captain Riley during his stay surveyed a route for a canal connecting the St. Mary's with the Wabash river. . . .

Fort Wayne in Randolph County.

In 1819, Randolph county, including the entire northeastern portion of Indiana, was organized by means of a subdivision of Wayne county, with Winchester as the seat of government. . . .

The First Protestant Missionaries.

1820. With renewed confidence and self-reliance since the removal of the protecting troops, the year 1820 brought marked advancement in the development of the village. The year brings to the pages of history the names of Rev. and Mrs. Isaac McCoy, the first Protestant missionaries to the Indians and the founders of the first school of the settlement. The McCoys sent by the Baptist missionary convention, after a severe experience in the vicinity of the present city of Terre Haute, were induced to settle at Fort Wayne through the advice of Colonel John Johnston and of Dr. William Turner. With their family of seven children, and accompanied by an Indian boy, a hired attendant and Mr. Lykins, a teacher, they rode on horseback from Fort Harrison (near Terre Haute) to Fort Wayne. At one point in the wilderness a party of drink-crazed Indians attacked the missionary while he was separated from the other members of the party, but his life was saved by a half-breed, Louis Godfrey. Chief Richardville then conveyed the party to Fort Wayne in safety. The missionaries drove a herd of fifteen head of cattle and forty-three hogs the entire distance from Terre Haute to Fort Wayne. The goods of the family were brought on flatboats on the Wabash, and portaged across to the St. Mary's. . . .

Fort Wayne's First School.

"At Fort Wayne was a little village of traders and of persons in the employ of the government, as interpreters, smiths, etc., some of whom were French, of Canadian and Indian descent," writes Rev. Mr. McCoy in his book,[170] published in later years. "The nearest settlements of white people were in the state of Ohio, and nearly one hundred miles distant." The missionaries were kindly treated by the people of the village, who prepared for them free quarters in the fort buildings and furnished an acre plowed two acres of ground for use as a garden. "I preached to them in my own house every Sabbath," writes the missionary. "On the 29th of May, our school was opened; I was teacher myself. We commenced with ten English scholars, six French, eight Indians and one negro; the latter, we hoped, would one day find his way to Liberia, in Africa." Mrs. Lucien P. Ferry (Caroline Bourie), of Decatur, Ind., was one of the pupils of Rev. Mr. McCoy, being at that time five years of age. Before their departure for a new field in Southwestern Michigan, the McCoys established a Baptist church of eleven members, but the organization soon disbanded. . . .

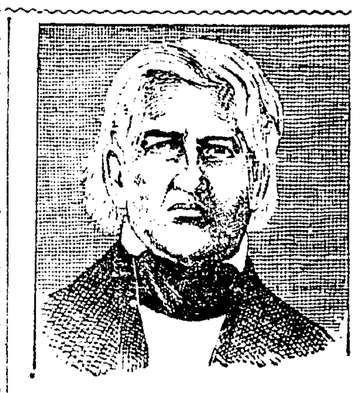
Major Stickney Succeeded by Benjamin B. Kercheval.

In April, Major B. F. Stickney, whose long and splendid service at Fort Wayne had done much to shape its future success, was transferred to a post on the lower Maumee river. Much has been written of the life and work of Major Stickney after his departure from Fort Wayne. A suggestion of his eccentric character is found in his choice of names for his children. The sons were called One, Two, Three, and so on, while the daughters were named for the states of the Union. . . . Dr. William Turner was appointed to succeed Major Stickney as agent, but he resigned on account of failing health, and John Hays was appointed in his stead, at a salary of $1,200 per year. Benjamin B. Kercheval a young Kentuckian who had been serving as clerk, was appointed sub-agent at a salary of $500. Mr. Kercheval soon succeeded Mr. Hays. The payment of annuities to the Indians in 1820 amounted to $21,121 in cash, in addition to $5,838.40 for mills, materials, superintendents, agents, sub-agents interpreters and blacksmiths. . . .

Kercheval and Hanna, First Postmasters.

During this eventful year the first post-office was established at Fort Wayne. Although Samuel Hanna was in reality the first man to become the postmaster of Fort Wayne, another pioneer, Benjamin B. Kercheval,[171] whose commission was dated February 4, was the first appointee of Postmaster General Return J. Meigs, of President Monroe's cabinet. Mr. Hanna established the office in his store, after Mr. Kercheval, evidently, had declined to serve. . . .

(Next Saturday's installment deals with the organization of Allen county, the platting of the town of Fort Wayne and beginnings of great enterprises).

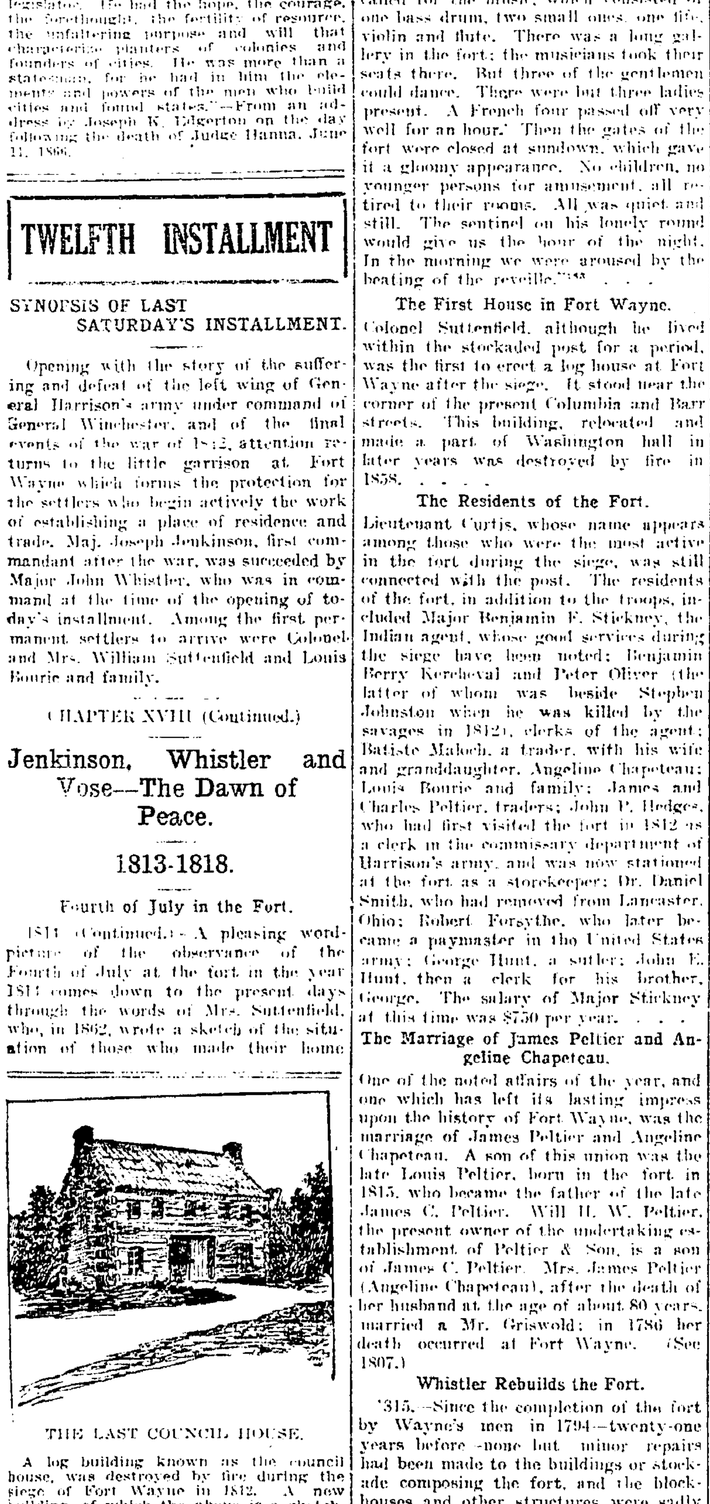


JAMES BARNETT.

Mr. Barnett, as one of Fort Wayne's first permanent settlers, helped to pave the way for the future prosperity of the town. His first visit to the fort was in 1797, two years after the building of the stockade by General Wayne. He came again as a soldier with General Harrison in 1812. His permanent residence dates from 1818. At that time he opened a store, and, in the following year, entered into partnership with Samuel Hanna. The two erected the first grist mill. Mr. Barnett built the first brick house in Fort Wayne. The portrait is reproduced from the "History of the Maumee River Basin," vol. II.

THE LAST COUNCIL HOUSE.

A log building known as the council house, was destroyed by fire during the siege of Fort Wayne in 1812. A new building, of which the above is a sketch, was built in 1817, to take its place. The building stood on East Main street, on a lot adjoining the No. 1 fire station, occupied later by the residence of Michael Hedekin. In later years it was used as a school house. "In one room," says Mrs. Lucien P. Ferry, "there were cupboards full of tobacco. Whenever the boys were unruly, they were shut up in these cupboards until they were almost suffocated." The building was the birthplace of Louis T. Bourie and his wife; it became the property of Captain John Bourie in 1839 and was torn down in 1856.



The drawings of buttons found on the site of the old stockade of Fort Wayne, by those who became tenants of the buildings, were made from originals owned by L. W. Hills and R. B. Rossington, of Fort Wayne, and by R. S. Robertson, jr., of Paducah, Ky., to whom a large collection of specimens was given by his father, the late Colonel R. S. Robertson. The three collections contain buttons worn by soldiers of the First, Second, Third, Fifth, Sixth, Eighth, Ninth, Tenth, Twelfth, Thirteenth and Fifteenth regiments of infantry, and a rifle regiment. "Those who wore them," wrote Colonel Robertson, "have long since departed, leaving no other record of the pioneer heroes who opened, and held open, the 'glorious gate' to the west, till the army of civilization could enter and take possession, and reap the fruits of their heroic daring."

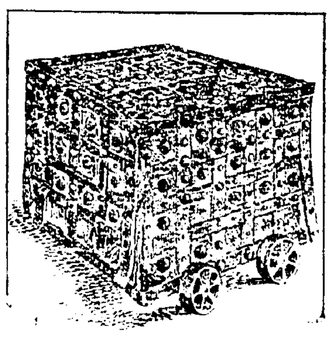
IN THE WESTERN COUNTRY. 127

Until the 1st of September, the savages about the fort had professed friendship, with a view to get possession of it by some stratagem. Captain Rhea who commanded, was addicted to intoxication, for which and his other misconduct he was arrested by general Harrison; but on account of his age he was permitted to resign. The fort was well prepared to resist a siege by Indians, as it had plenty of provisions and water, and about 70 men with four small field pieces. It is delightfully situated on an eminence on the south bank of the Miami of the Lake, immediately below the formation of that river by the junction of the St. Marys from the southwest with the St. Josephs from the north. It is well constructed of block houses and picketting, but could not resist a British force, as there are several eminences on the south side, from which it could be commanded by a six or nine pounder.

This is the place, where the Miami Indians formerly had their principal town: and here many an unfortunate prisoner suffered death by burning at the stake. It was here also, that general Harmer suffered his army to be cut up and defeated in detachments after he had burnt the town in the fall of the year 1790. For more than a century before that time, it had been the principal place of rendezvous between the Indians of the lakes, and those of the Wabash and Illinois, and had been much resorted about the year '56 and previously, by French traders from Canada. The Miami is navigable for boats from this place to the lake, and the portage to the nearest navigable branch of the Wabash, is but seven or eight miles, through a level marshy prairie, from which the water runs both to the Wabash and St. Marys. A canal at some future day will unite these rivers, and thus render a town at fort Wayne, as formerly, the most considerable place in all that country. The corn which had been cultivated in the fields by the villagers, was nearly all destroyed by the Indians; the remains...

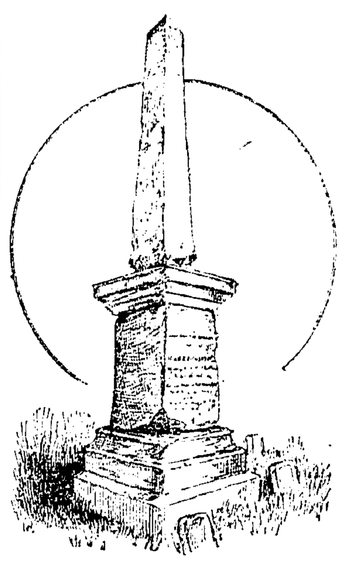
WHAT A CENTURY-OLD BOOK SAID ABOUT FORT WAYNE.

This is a photographic reproduction of a page from Captain Robert McAfee's "History of the Late War [1812] in the Western Country." It describes Fort Wayne as it appeared at the time of the publication of the book in 1816. Following is an explanation of the numbered references: 1 September, 1812. 2—The buildings and palisades of the fort. 3—Maumee river. 4—In the neighborhood of Barr, Washington, Jefferson and other streets of that locality. 5—Kekionga. 6—Little river. 7—McAfee here predicts the Wabash and Erie canal, that did much to "render a town at Fort Wayne," as which, indeed, became "the most considerable place in all that country."



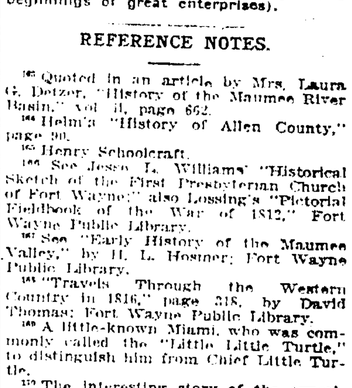
CHIEF RICHARDVILLE'S SAFE.

The iron safe owned by Chief Jean Baptiste de Richardville was the first to be brought to Fort Wayne. Richardville, who first secured a near-monopoly of the portage business between the St. Mary's and the Wabash rivers and later engaged in the Indian trade with his headquarters on Columbia street, is said to have been the most wealthy Indian in America. The safe was a strong wooden box, securely bound with sheets and strips of iron, firmly bolted. The wood is now decayed and many of the bolts are missing. The safe is on exhibition in the relic room of the court house, as a loan of L. W. Hills, who purchased it from John W. Miller. Mr. Miller bought it from James Godfrey in 1856. The safe was opened by the use of a key which unlocked the door at the top.



THE CHIEF RICHARDVILLE MONUMENT.

The monument raised over the burial place of Chief Jean Baptiste de Richardville, in the present Cathedral square (the south half of which was used originally for a burial ground), was, at the time of the removal of the bodies to the Catholic cemetery in the southwestern part of the city, taken to the new burying ground, although the body of the Miami chief was allowed to remain in its original grave. Later, the monument was removed to the present Catholic cemetery, northeast of Fort Wayne. The small shaft of white marble was erected by the chief's daughters, Catherine, LaBlonde and Susan. While standing in the old cemetery, on the bank of the St. Mary's river, directly south from the Pennsylvania tracks, the monument became marred by sportsmen, who used it for a target in order to carry away its chips as souvenirs. It was removed to its present site by a granddaughter, Mrs. Archangel Engelmann, of Huntington (daughter of Catherine, the wife of Chief LaFontaine). One panel bears the inscription: "Here Rest the Remains of John B. Richardville, Principal Chief of the Miami Tribe of Indians. He Was Born in Fort Wayne, Indiana, About the Year 1760, and Died in August, 1841." The resting place of the body of Richardville is described as a spot "just at the edge of the Cathedral, between the forward side door and the first buttress of the wall."



CHIEF RICHARDVILLE (PE-CHE-WA.)

"He is," said Senator John Tipton, who knew him well, "the ablest diplomat of whom I have any knowledge. If he had been born and educated in France, he would have been the equal of Tallyrand." The portrait of Chief Jean Baptiste de Richardville (Pe-che-wa) is after an oil painting in the possession of his granddaughter, Mrs. Archangel Engleman, of Huntington county. Richardville was the son of Joseph Drouet de Richardville, a French trader, and Tau-cum-wah, a sister of Chief Little Turtle. He was born about 1761 in a hut near the historic apple tree in the present Lakeside. While yet a boy, an exhibition of great daring in rescuing a white prisoner from burning at the stake made Richardville a chief of the Miamis. Although he was present on the occasion of Harmar's defeat, he did not participate in the slaughter, as his tendencies were always toward peace and the betterment of his tribe. He was a signer of the treaty of Greenville. His daughter, LaBlonde, married James Godfrey, and Catherine, a second daughter, became the wife of Chief Francis LaFontaine. There was a third daughter, Susan. For a number of years Richardville conducted an extensive trading business on Columbia street and was considered the wealthiest Indian in America. He died at his later home on the St. Mary's, August 13, 1841.

FRED CLARKE'S PITTSBURGERS ARE SO GOOD THEY WILL HAVE TO GIVE UP THE NAME OF PIRATES.

Hot Springs, Ark., March 21.—Fred Clarke, by making the most spectacular trade of recent baseball history, has climaxed his Pittsburg team of clashing elements, and he has in the field a fierce hitting infield; a pitching staff that does not seem as strong on paper as that of last spring, but is now a working staff; a catching staff above major league average, and an experimental outfield.

Konetchy at first was for years rated among the best, and this season, away from the Cards, and inspired with new ambition, he probably will come into his own. Viox at second has all the earmarks of a comer.

Wagner is the chief strength. Those who have figured Honus as gone back can guess again. The ambition of Wagner's life is to quit while at the climax of his career. He reported this spring lighter and better than in three seasons.

Then there is Mike Mowrey at third. For ten years Mike has suffered from stomach trouble, a form of nervous dyspepsia. He claims he is entirely cured. He looks better, and is faster than he has been in several years.

That veteran infield is to be flanked by a makeshift outfield. Carey will be one, and probably the two slashing youngsters, Jim Kelley and George Watson, will fill the places vacated by Clarke and Leach. Jim Kelley looks a corking outfielder. Joe Kelly, from St. Joe, is promising. Mike Mitchell is there to fill in any position if the youngsters slip. Add to that Hans Hyatt, who can hit with the best of them, but never can play any position well enough to oust the regular, and it looks good enough.

Gibson may or may not be great this year. He was the best in the land one season, slumped miserably the next, then met with an accident that stopped him when he was going strong. Coleman is the second string catcher. Brendigan from Norfolk, Walt, a St. Louis semi-pro, and Rafeon, a Chicago youth, are the other catchers.

Pabe Adams, Cooper, McQuillan, the cracker-jack sensation of last season, and Bob Harmon are the slab leaders. Besides those, Clarke has gathered a bunch of promising material. Flame Delhi, once a coast sensation, Kantlehner from Victoria, who will bear watching; Mamaux is promising, Fullerton from Seattle, Jaffy from Great Falls and McArthur from Hopkinsville are the rest.

There is an immense amount of good material there. Barney Dreyfuss digs them up from somewhere and finds more than any one other magnate. Usually they look fine in figures. This spring they look good on the field.

There is one element that must be considered. Clarke has the best behaved ball club in America. It is likely there is not one man on the entire team who will drink even a glass of beer.

QUEER RELATION OF THE MANAGER

Situation at Grand Rapids is Likely to Be Complicated.

Internal complications are likely to arise in Central league play at Island of Ramona Athletic park the coming season that will have the fans up in the air. Suppose, for instance, Manager Harry Martin, of the Fort Wayne team, comes up to bat when a hit will win the game for his team and lose it for the Grand Rapids team.

Harry's partner in the sporting goods business here is Bert Noblett, half owner of the Grand Rapids team. Thus when Harry does anything to beat the Grand Rapids team he will be handing a bitter package to his business partner. If he does not win for his team he will be throwing down the man who employs him to manage the Fort Wayne team.

Then Harry will have also to consider that he must keep himself popular with the fans here for them to buy their hats, balls and gloves at the store in which he is interested. He has been in the game long enough to know that the surest road to unpopularity with the fans is to do things that keep the home boys from winning.

Just imagine if you can Harry out there beating the home team out of games and then hurrying back down town to get behind the counter to try and sell goods to fans disgusted with the defeat of their home boys by a home boy playing with the visiting team.

Another complication that may arise also is the releasing of W. E. Essick as pitcher of the team if he fails to show the form to be expected of any man playing in Grand Rapids' uniform this year. The president of the Grand Rapids club expects to go in training within a week or two in the hope of being able to take his regular turn in the box, now that he has a partner to leave on the job looking after his business interests, as he has in Bert Noblett.

Last year President Essick stood before a mirror and gave himself notice of release as a player. It was a bitter blow to the man who the two previous seasons had led the team's pitchers in percentage of games won, but he took it manfully and for the balance of the season devoted his time to looking after the business end of the game. Manager George Hughes says Pitcher Bill Essick will have to show him something to hold his job on the team, even regardless of the fact that he is also half owner and president of the club.

Manager Hughes was thinking of giving Secretary Noblett, of the Grand Rapids club, a chance to show his speed with the team, but since he learned that Noblett formerly played second base he changed his mind, for he has made up his mind not to have any second baseman hanging around looking for his job. It was not so very long ago that Bert was one of the best second sackers in the league and the best batsmen and base runner on the Grand Rapids team. Since that time Bert has taken on weight until he now has a paunch on him like a well fed alderman.

There sure is going to be some tall doings in connection with the Champs' play this season.

OTHERS INSIDE MONEY

One Fort Wayne team put the city on the bowling map at Buffalo last night, while the old champs, the fellows that led for several days at Chicago three years ago, slumped badly and finished next to last in the Fort Wayne contingent games that were bowled last night.

George Jackson, Jack Kelly, Clarence Centlivre, Harry Brooks and Frank Hills tabbed a total of 2,877 and took third place in the standing of the five-men teams in the national meet. The best single game of the squad was rolled in the last by the Berghoff five when every man but one bettered 200 and tabbed a total of 1,038. # Blood Poison Cured

Often Times In One Treatment

We Use Neo Salvarsan or 914

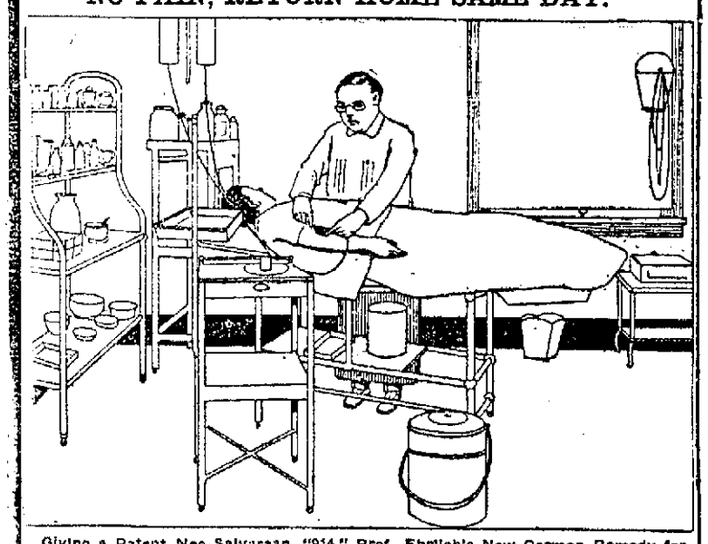
OUR BEST REFERENCE NO CURE—NO PAY.

MEN The new German treatment is the remedy that you should demand when suffering from this loathsome condition. For years, even ages, doctors have been treating this curse on humanity by administering drugs and poisons. The old-time method was purely empirical, it being almost entirely based upon what this or that doctor concluded to use on his patient, the treatment in many cases being more injurious than the disease itself, causing the germs to be bottled up in the blood. The New German Remedy "914," Neosalvarsan, is truly scientific, and has done more to relieve sufferers from this disease than any other discovery of this or any other age.

NO PAIN, RETURN HOME SAME DAY.



Giving a Patent Neo-Salvarsan, "914," Prof. Ehrlich's New German Remedy for Blood Poison. This is the intravenous method, directly into the blood, the only way it should be given.

Extract from letter of Prof. Ehrlich:

* * * Judging from all the reports received by me, it appears that the intravenous injection is to be preferred to all other methods of administration, as far as permanency of effect is concerned. Although I have to admit that this method of administration will prove an obstacle to the introduction of the remedy in general practice, on account of certain technical difficulties. I believe that the interests of the patient demand that only the most efficient form of treatment should be decided upon.

* * * I should feel much obliged to you if you will—as heretofore—assist me in this direction, and in the future employ as much as possible of the intravenous mode for the administration of the remedy.

(Signed.) P. EHRLICH.

HYDROCELE, RUPTURE, PILES CURED TO STAY CURED IN ONE TREATMENT

VARICOCELE

Varicocele is a diseased condition of the scrotal veins. It may be caused by blows, kicks, falls, heavy lifting, mumps, early indiscretion, or may be a symptom only of some special weakness.

The proper treatment consists of local application for the purpose of dispelling the stagnant blood and contracting the swollen veins, as well as internal medication to strengthen the nerves which govern the blood supply to these veins.

Though causing you no trouble at the present time, your Varicocele will, if permitted to go without the proper treatment, impair and destroy the elements of vitality.

We daily demonstrate that Varicocele can be positively and speedily cured without cutting, burning or any other form of operation.

UNNATURAL DISCHARGES

Unnatural discharges, whether recent or chronic; Gonorrhea, Gleet, Stricture, Inflammation of the Bladder and Prostrate, Orchitis, Hydrocele and Varicocele in all their stages, forms and complications, cured quickly, permanently and without hindrance to business by remedies tested in many years of special practice.

NERVO-VITAL DEBILITY

SYMPTOMS—The patient is usually undecided and timid; at times there may be great despondency and loss of energy, a feeling that recovery is impossible; digestion sometimes weak; complexion sickly; unable to endure much exertion of any kind; muscles weak and flabby; inability to concentrate the mind, and aversion to society.

TREATMENT—After a careful study of the SPECIAL SYMPTOMS OF EACH CASE, the proper treatment is prescribed accordingly. Certain drugs temporarily cause an irritative stimulation, but their use never results in permanent benefit, and often does much harm. The remedies we use are absolutely free from all such, and, while acting with rapidity, leave PERMANENT EFFECTS. The good results once obtained, the patient is not forced to continue their use.

STRICTURE

For the benefit of Stricture we have discovered and developed a system that gives all the benefits of surgery without the pain that surgery involves; a painless system of curing Stricture which acts directly upon the affected parts, dissolves the abnormal tissue, stops all irritation and allays all inflammation of the Bladder and Prostate.

COURAGE NEEDED IN CLUB'S RANKS

Zanesville Has Good Basket Ball Team But It Needs Ginger.

EASILY BEAT FRIARS

Just as soon as the Zanesville basket ball teams become imbued with the courage and confidence needed to meet all comers in independent circles it will be a great combination. This was proven last night when it went at top speed through a grilling game with the Friars, won out 39 to 25 and displayed the best teamwork and basket shooting it has ever shown on a Fort Wayne floor.

With the team going as it did last night none in this vicinity has anything on it and it ought to be willing to let its opponents dig up the very best, and then when the players achieve a victory they will have accomplished something worth while.

When they do this they may get a good walloping or two but they will prove to the basket ball patrons that they have the courage and that they are real champions—the one thing they want to be. As long as they pick opponents, quibble about substitutes and refuse to permit other clubs build up to the strength necessary to make the matches equal the aggregation cannot expect the full approval of the public.

Last night objection was made to the use of Stromp and finally Hill was injected into the game and Stromp eventually broke in for five minutes, but in each instance delays of ten minutes were brought about, and the crowd was disgusted with the tactics and didn't hesitate to express itself.

Frank Rinehart played at guard part of the first half. Frank is a fine tango dancer, a fair outfielder, a good hand at a banquet and an earnest advocate of all kinds of sport, and incidentally a substitute on the Friar team. He does not pose as a basket ball player of the caliber needed for the club and just simply fills in to be a good fellow. He could not stop either of the Zanesville forwards, and an effort to send Stromp to the front and let Fletcher fall back in the trenches caused the first break.

Crowe was kept under cover all night but in the last practice the Zanesville lads anticipated this and formulated a plan of attack that put the basket shooting in the hands of Keplinger and Jacobs, the two forwards. These boys certainly shot at a clip unequaled here, and the victory over the Friars was clean cut and proved Zanesville the better team.

In passing, carrying the ball down the floor, defending their own goal and in all around work the Zanesville boys displayed real class. Heretofore the impression has existed here that the club played slam bang basket ball and trusted to luck. Last night it relieved the public mind of this impression. All the men played real basket ball and when the club was tagging for a few minutes in the first half the players didn't show a bit yellow but bored in and overcame the lead and then went at it hammer and tongs.

LOST ONLY THREE GAMES.

W. E. Meanwell has turned out another championship team. The Wisconsin university basketball team won the third successive conference championship, and most of their success is due to the coaching of Meanwell, who has never coached a loser. In three years under Meanwell's coaching Wisconsin has only lost three games.

SCORE SECOND DOUBLE WIN.

Fort Wayne Lands Two Basket Ball Games in Auburn Contests.

A crippled team did not prevent the Fort Wayne high school basket ball team from winning over Auburn high last night at Auburn by a score of 22 to 18. The Fort Wayne girls repeated on the Auburn girls and shaded them a point in the other half of the double bill.

Fort Wayne girls had a hard time winning out and were on the short end of the count at the end of the first half. Two special traction cars carried about 150 Fort Wayne rooters to the games. Players and summary:

THREE DISEASES DEFYING DOCTORS SKILL

RHEUMATISM, HEART TROUBLE, WOMANLY ILLS.

These diseases have plagued humanity for centuries.

Mrs. E. W. Hall, of 2017 Phenix St., Fort Wayne, says: I was troubled with Rheumatism for three years. A year ago I was bedfast and could not do my own housework. After I tried everything I could think of and the doctor's skill had been exhausted without any help, one of the Miller's advertisements was left at our door. I read all the testimonials of Fort Wayne people that were cured with Miller's True Herb Remedy and I told my husband I was going to try that yet, and he consented that I should. I sent for a bottle and when I had that taken I was able to do my own housework again. I took the second bottle and was completely cured. Miller's Herb Remedy not only cured Rheumatism but it cured me of Palpitation of the Heart and Female Ills in the short time while I took two bottles. I do not know of another remedy that will cure so many ailments in such a short time. Our son is using the remedy for Kidney trouble and he is receiving great benefit from it, so that makes three diseases cured with one remedy. Miller's Herb Remedy has been a blessing in our family.

ARMY'S HEADS BALK AT ORDER

The actual fact of this disaffection is the more discomforting to the military authorities since the army is already seriously short of commissioned officers.

Threats of a crisis in the army if a movement of regular troops was undertaken against Ulster had long been current and in some quarters it is believed that the sudden marching of a limited number of troops was ordered so that the military authorities might gather an idea as to how widespread the threat of disaffection was.

Summons Army Counsel.

Immediately after Col. Seeley, the secretary of state for war, had been in audience with King George at Buckingham this morning Col. Seeley summoned a meeting of the army counsel, which took the necessary steps to replace officers who had resigned.

According to reports, however, the number of vacancies is rapidly increasing, and it seems possible that all the regular regiments which have been serving in Ulster may have to be withdrawn and replaced by fresh troops, as both men and officers have openly expressed their disinclination to take the offensive against men with whom they have been fraternizing. This momentary shifting of the immediate crisis from Ulster to the army may give the peace-makers their desired opening.

It was thought in many quarters today that if the government would consent to give the counties of Ulster perpetual local option on the question of home rule, instead of compelling them to come under the Dublin parliament at the end of six years, a way out of the present difficulty would be opened. The nationalists always have contended that the Ulstermen would be glad to join the home rule scheme once it had been demonstrated that their fears of unfair treatment were unfounded.

King's Active Part.

King George himself is taking an active part in the negotiations. He is not confining conferences to members of the cabinet, but has been in communication with Arthur J. Balfour and gave an audience to Field Marshal Lord Roberts after he had seen the secretary of state for war. Lord Roberts subsequently conferred at length with Col. Seeley and the war office executive staff which has been working at high pressure.

An official communication issued this afternoon says: "The recent movements of troops in Ulster are purely precautionary with the object of giving adequate protection to depots of arms and ammunition and other government property against possible risks."

It adds: "There has not been and is not now any intention to move troops into Ulster except for these and like purposes."

ADVANCE GUARD ARRIVES.

Large Armed Force Placed in Various Towns of Ulster.

Belfast, Ireland, March 21.—Within twenty-four hours over 3,000 regular troops, including four battalions of infantry, with machine guns and two batteries of field artillery, all equipment for active service, have arrived in the various towns of Ulster.

These troops form the advance guard of a large armed force which the military authorities are sending to the northern province of Ireland to prevent the assumption of local government by anti-home rulers.

Still more troops are on their way to the north from military camp at Curragh and from other army stations today. The first arrivals in Ulster this morning were the companies of a half battalion of the Yorkshire light infantry, which were conveyed from their barracks in Dublin to Belfast Lough on board the torpedo boat destroyer Pathfinder during the night. They disembarked at an early hour this morning and marched to Carrick Fergus castle, a disused military station commanding the lough. It lies fifteen miles below Belfast and is of historic interest, owing to its having been the landing place of William III. Field guns were mounted on the old fortifications there this afternoon.

Orders were issued to other batteries of artillery to occupy strategic positions around the city of Belfast.

Sir Edward Carson, the Ulster unionist leader, and his lieutenants desire the government to take the first provocative step. Sir Edward realizing the vitalness of preventing an undisciplined outbreak as a protest against all these troops' movements, today again urged the Ulstermen to keep cool during the week end. The city this morning presented its normal outward aspect. All the places of business were open and in accordance with urgent request of the unionist leaders, all the men worked until their usual Saturday closing time.

The old town hall of Belfast, which is the official headquarters of the "provisional" government, has been denied to all. The important equipment, as well as all documents, ciphers and other papers, have been removed from it and hidden in a variety of places after being distributed among the most important leaders of the unionists. This was done in consequence of the announcement of impending arrests which the unionists contend brought about the present crisis.

Every "volunteer" in Ulster still stands ready for mobilization. The provisional government's "posting house," by which letters and dispatches are delivered by hand to the furthermost points of Ulster quicker than by the government post, was busy all night sending and receiving communications to and from the various mobilization centers of the unionists. A wireless station on the roof of the old town hall also was at work while some of the rooms of the building have been fitted with telegraph instruments for the instruction of the women telegraph operators who are to take over the lines of communication, were filled with workers.

The drug stores of Belfast have laid in large supplies of surgical and medical equipment.

SOLDIER FIRST VICTIM.

Dublin, March 21.—The first victim of the existing state of excitement in Ireland was a soldier at the Curragh camp, who was late for roll call. He attempted to scale a wall of the barracks and was shot by a sentry. It is thought the wound will prove fatal.

The commander-in-chief in Ireland, Gen. Sir Arthur Paget, has arrived at the Curragh, where conferences are in progress between the officers who have resigned their commissions and the military authorities.

Field Marshal Sir John French, chief of the imperial general staff, arrived here today in connection with the resignation of officers from the regular army owing to their refusal to march against the unionists in Ulster.

MUST DECLARE THEMSELVES.

Enniskillen, Ireland, March 21.—All the army officers here received a communication from the war office today calling on them to make a definite statement within twelve hours as to whether they were prepared to retain their commissions in the event of hostilities in Ulster. If not, they were told, they must resign forthwith.

Similar notices are said to be received by all officers with the troops in the north of Ireland.

ORDERED IN READINESS.

Athlone, Ireland, March 21.—All the regular artillery stationed in central and southern Ireland has been instructed to hold itself in readiness to proceed to Ulster at a moment's notice. All leave of absence has been cancelled and officers and men on furlough have been recalled.

It is reported that the infantry reservists have been ordered to hold themselves in readiness to join their regiments.

been a conference at Vera Cruz between John Lind and Senor Portillo Rojas, minister of foreign affairs of Mexico. As to its nature, however, Secretary Bryan said no word had reached him. Significance was attached here to the conference as reopening negotiations discontinued some time ago. The further fact that Charge O'Shaughnessy and Charge Hohler, the latter of the British legation, also had gone to Vera Cruz, gave added hope in diplomatic circles that some developments might be expected.

O'SHAUGHNESSY IS ILL.

Goes to Vera Cruz for Treatment for Sciatic Rheumatism.

Vera Cruz, March 21.—Nelson O'Shaughnessy, American charge, arrived here today in a private car escorted by a company of presidential guards. He expects to remain for several days to undergo treatment for sciatic rheumatism.

It is understood that O'Shaughnessy and Thomas B. Hohler, British charge d'affaires, who came with him from Mexico City, will confer this afternoon with John Lind, personal representative of President Wilson.

er day regarding my recent speech on this tolls matter that the president had told me I was 'skating on thin ice.' I never heard any such statement from the president. If it was made afterwards it was made for the consumption of the press."

The incident ended with a general volley of remarks from democratic senators that they had profited by consulting the president on various subjects.

Clark Rules Adversely.

Representative Murray, of Oklahoma, endeavored today to call up his resolution requiring the state department to transmit to the house a report on the recent Monroe doctrine speech of Ambassador W. H. Page in London. He contended that the resolution was privileged.

After considerable argument Speaker Clark ruled that as the resolution called for "opinions and conclusions" from the department, it wasn't privileged.

"I don't know," said the speaker, "whether the state department knows what its policy is or not, or whether it knows what its policy will be tomorrow or next year or fifty years from now. Certainly a statement onthis point could be no more than an opinion."

WOMAN SOBS OUT DETAILS

fulness of the prison wardens and the attendant nuns which had been called forth by rumors of the prisoner's intention to commit suicide has now relaxed. Mme. Caillaux gives no indication of being morbid or depressed. She now has three cells, one of them serving as a bedroom another as diningroom and a third as a workroom. All open into the same corridor which is enclosed by a finely meshed wire netting.

ONLY VERDICT TO BE KNOWN.

Court Martial of German Army Officer Will Be Secret.

Metz, Germany, March 21.—A secret court martial of Lieut. von Lavalette Saint George, of the 98th infantry regiment, for killing Lieut. Haag in a duel on Feb. 26, began here today. Nothing of the trial will be made known except the verdict, the president of the court having decided that the publication of the evidence would be a menace to military discipline.

WAS COUNSEL FOR BRYAN.

Henry G. Newton Succumbs to Attack of Heart Failure.

New Haven, Conn., March 21.—Henry G. Newton, federal receiver in bankruptcy for this district, died today of heart failure.

Mr. Newton was personal counsel for William Jennings Bryan, executor of the estate of Philo Bennett, in Mr. Bryan's appeal from a decision in the superior court which held invalid a bequest to the executor contained in a sealed letter found with the will.

GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

Chicago Market.

Chicago, March 21.—Wheat today showed a tendency to ease off in sympathy with bearish cables. Opening figures were a shade to ¼c lower. Subsequently there was some reaction.

The close was steady at a shade to ¼@⅜c net decline.

Business in corn proved greatly reduced in volume compared with that of the two previous days. Prices started to ⅜c down and suffered an additional sag before beginning to rally.

The close was steady, ⅜c to ⅝@½c under last night.

Oats descended with corn. Not a great deal of selling pressure was evident.

Larger receipts hogs than expected made provisions weak. First sales varied from 2½c to 7½c lower, and a further drop quickly ensued.

THE DAY ON WALL STREET.

New York, March 21.—Speculation lacked initiative when trading began today and the market lay quiet. Reading showed some of the strength which advanced it rapidly yesterday, rising nearly a point. Bethlehem Steel lost one point. Variations from the preceding close otherwise were trivial.

The market closed heavy. Speculative buying forced prices higher temporarily today, but the market relinquished its gain before the end of the day, and last figures showed declines among the favorite stocks. During the progress of the rise some of the low priced railroad and industrial shares were taken freely, touching the best figures of a long time. Higher prices induced selling on the part of traders who did not wish to carry stocks over the week-end, and bears put out new lines as the market weakened. The decline was hastened by a break in the Rumely issues, the preferred losing 4½ points. Bonds were irregular.

DAILY MARKET LETTER.

(Furnished by J. S. Phillips, North American Building, Fort Wayne, Ind.)

Chicago, March 21.—Liverpool markets ⅜c lower on wheat and ¼c lower on corn. Primary receipts, 524,000 vs. 735,000 bushels a year ago. Our market dull and a little lower all around. News not very helpful to the bulls in the corn market. Country sold few scattered cars on over night bids. Plenty of Argentine corn offered. Sales were made yesterday at 69¾c C. I. F. Early April 65c; May, 66½c. They are selling their corn and it looks as though they would continue to sell on all hard spots. It looks to us as though the leading bulls have sold their corn on the recent advance and will rest up for a few days.

London did not follow our advance of yesterday and as a consequence our stocks all closed lower. The rushing of troops to Ulster and fear of trouble there sufficiently accounts for English apathy. On the continent sentiment is improving. Huerta's appeals to President Wilson is an admission of weakness, showing fear that the rebels will win the battle at Torreon. It seems unlikely that President Wilson will compromise. Closing prices follow:

Atchison, 98; American Smelters, 69⅝; Amalgamated Copper, 76⅝; B. & O., 91¼; C. & O., 53½; Canadian Pacific, 207¾; Erie, 29¾; Great Northern, 128⅝; Missourri Pacific, 25; Northern Pacific, 113; New York Central, 90⅜; Pennsylvania, 113; Reading, 165⅞; Southern Railway, 26; St. Paul, 99¼; Southern Pacific, 95; New Haven, 63⅝; Union Pacific, 158¾; U. S. Steel, 64½.

While somewhat warmer weather prevails this morning throughout the greater portion of the central states, another extensive area of high pressure, accompanied by colder weather and some snow, is spreading southeastward from the British northwest. A cold wave has overspread the upper Missouri valley and the middle and northern Rocky mountain region, with zero temperatures over North Dakota. This high pressure will continue to spread southeastward, indicating continued cold weather for this section for the next two or three days, with probably some snow tonight and Sunday.

Outbursts of Everett True

BY CONDON.

"WHOSE WIFE AM I?"—NEW TURN IN TWIN BROTHERS PUZZLE.

MISS ROSEBUD ENGLISH, WHO WAS, AND THINKS SHE STILL IS, MRS. A. D. OLIVER.

Americus, Ga., March 21.—"Whose wife am I, anyway?" Rosebud English asks the courts of Georgia.

Once she was Mrs. Oliver; then she was Mrs. James; now she is known as Miss Rosebud English, the name she had before she first sailed out over turbulent matrimonial seas.

She divorced Oliver because she thought he was his twin brother, who already had a wife, and married James; she divorced James when she found out that Oliver was not his twin brother, and therefore had no other wife at the time he married her.

So it's up to the court to decide the legal status of the former wife of Alfred D. Oliver, now that he has been released by the Mississippi authorities on the ground that he is not L. C. Harding, in whose name he was serving a penal sentence, and who, Oliver claims, is his twin brother.

Oliver was formerly a bank president. According to him, it was his twin brother and not himself who perpetrated the offenses that were laid at his door. He intends to enter the banking business again. His wife, or former wife, has already entered into negotiations to see if he will allow her to return to him.

"Our marriage should not have been annulled," she explains, "for as I am convinced now, he is his own self and not the twin brother known as Harding, and who married the woman who claimed my husband as hers.

"Therefore, as we were separated because the courts decided my husband was really Harding, the courts ought to put us back on the same standing again—husband and wife.

"I admit that I have had another husband in the meantime, but I married him because I thought Oliver had deceived me into a bigamous marriage—the court said so—but now I know the court was wrong and my husband was right. I want him back with me again.

"If he wasn't guilty of bigamy when he married me, and that he wasn't has been legally decided since, then our marriage was legal, the annulment illegal, and I am still his legal wife. That's what I think, but I wish I were sure!"
